The screw steamship City of Washington, Capt. PETRIE, which sailed from Liverpool at fouro'clock in the afternoon of the 13th of April, arrived here at four o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The Cunard steamship Asia, from New York, arrived at Liverpool at 2 P. M. on Sunday, the 10th of April.

The steamship Prince Albert, which sailed from Galway for St. Johns, N. F. on the 9th inst., put back to Galway on the 11th, leaking badly.

The screw steamer Borussia, from New York, arrived at Southampton on the evening of the 12th.

The news by this arrival still points to the immediate probability of war.

STATE OF THE WAR QUESTION.

Official Statements from Austria and Prussia—Further Sardinian Pleadings—The General Aspect.

The latest and most important developments upon the pending issue of war or peace, and the endeavor to avert an European war by means of a Congress of the great Powers is furnished by two telegrams, the one from Vienna, and the other from Berlin. These telegrams transmit abstracts of articles which appear in the semi-official journals of those capitals. The Oesterreichische Correspondenz, of the 11th inst., says:

"Austria has given undeniable proof of her love of peace by the manner in which she met Lord COWLEY's mission and afterwards by accepting the proposals for a Congress. Willingly would Austria make sacrifices in order to preserve peace, but she cannot do so merely to grant others delay before the commencement of the war. The disarming of Piedmont has been stated as a preliminary condition, which condition was supported by England, while Austria, on the other hand, proposed a general disarming as the first act of the Congress, thereby adding a fifth preliminary point to those already proposed. France did not think it possible to make Piedmont disarm alone, and Austria thereupon proposed a general disarming before the Congress began, in order to insure essential guarantees for the maintenance of peace."

The article concludes thus: "How could it be thought possible that Austria would join the Congress unless substantial proofs were given that the spirit which actuates her prevails also in all the other Cabinets?

The article published in the Prussian Government journal, the Preussische Zeitung, of April 11, is scarcely better calculated than the Austrian declaration to increase our hopes of the maintenance of peace. It observes that uneasiness has filled the public mind in consequence of the statement that the meeting of a Congress is doubtful, and then goes on to say:

"Without wishing to maintain the groundlessness of the intelligence, we nevertheless believe ourselves permitted to assume, that, in spite of the serious turn affairs have taken, the efforts of mediating Powers are not yet to be regarded as terminated; and, indeed, a step of a mediatorial nature has just been taken by the Prussian Government. Keeping in view the repeated decision of France of a peaceful tendency, the hope still remains that mediation in the impending difficult question may possibly be proceeded with."

As for the rest, the Prussians are assured that their Government has done everything to fulfill its duties towards Germany and Europe, and that it relies on similar endeavors on the part of its German allies.

The semi-official declarations thus telegraphed from Vienna and Berlin nearly destroy any interest which might have been attached to various rumors that had previously found circulation. Thus the Austrian semi-official article directly contradicts the Morning Post, which affirmed that Austria no longer insists that Sardinia shall disarm, but is "willing to proceed as soon as possible to the Congress, and professes her readiness to accept terms which will not call upon her to submit to humiliation." The Austrian proposal for a simultaneous disarmament of Austria, France and Sardinia appears to have been known in Paris on Monday, April 11; but if the French Government reply to it in the language said to have been used by the President of the Senate, the answer will be deemed a mockery, for M. TROPLONG is reported to have said that France could not disarm, because she had never armed.

A telegram from Trieste brings the ominous announcement that the transport of goods on the railway between Trieste and Vienna will be discontinued from the 13th to the 28th inst., of course for the purpose of facilitating the conveyance of troops and military stores to Italy.

It is noteworthy, that the Archduke ALBRECHT of Austria arrived on the 12th at Berlin, and was received with much distinction. His visit can scarcely be viewed with pleasure by the French Government, and is an indication of a cordiality between the Austrian and Prussian Courts, which seems to show that Prussia is not indisposed to support Austria against an aggression on the part of France.

The Morning Herald contradicts the statement, which originally appeared in the Times, that Lord COWLEY is about to leave Paris, in order to pay a visit to London.

Position of Austria.

From the London Times.

Hardly any one here believes that peace can be maintained, but I think that the impending evil might be averted if the British Government had sufficient moral courage to express its disapproval of the policy of the Emperor NAPOLEON. This Government has done everything in its power to obviate the necessity for an appeal to arms, but the Emperor of the French evidently wishes to bring about a war, and he will doubtless attain his object, unless her Majesty's Government takes heart, and plainly states that France cannot calculate on its coöperation unless she displays a more conciliatory spirit. Until now Austria has done everything which the mediating Powers have requested her to do, but there is reason to believe that she is about to turn the tables on them, and to ask whether they are willing to give a guarantee that no attack shall be made on her by Sardinia and France while the Congress is sitting. Should the mediating Powers—who, in the name of the Emperor of the French, had promised that Sardinia should disarm—consent to give the required guarantee, the Congress may perhaps meet, but it certainly will not if they should decline to do so. "Within eight and forty hours," said an extremely well-informed person to me, yesterday evening, "Austria will see her way clearly, and you may expect soon to hear that some decisive step has been taken." It is probable that an ultimatum will be sent by this Government to Sardinia. Should such a document be forwarded to Turin, it will doubtless be a summons to Sardinia to disarm, accompanied by the remark that if she should refuse to do so, Austria will declare war against her. People here are perfectly well aware of the extreme importance of such a step, but still they hope it will soon be taken, as they know that the outlay for the army amounts to more than half a million of florins a day.

THE SPECIAL SARDINIAN MISSION TO LONDON.

In the meantime a new dispatch from Count CAVOUR throws fresh light on the position of Sardinia. It is addressed to the Marquis D'AZEGLIO, the Sardinian Ambassador at London:

TURIN, Monday, March 21.

MONSIEUR LE MARQUIS: The Government of Russia has just made the formal proposition to submit the Italian question to a Congress of the great Powers.

I hasten, M. le Marquis, to make known to you the views of the Government of the King in this respect.

Sardinia has no objection to make against the meeting of a Congress which, taking into consideration the interests and the just complaints of the Peninsula, would take upon itself to give a pacific and satisfactory solution of the difficulties which deserredly attract the serious attention of Europe. But the Cabinet of Turin believes at the same time that Piedmont ought to be represented at this Congress, and it is persuaded that its intervention would be useful, not to say indispensable, if the Powers which show a proved sympathy for Italy, and those which desire to obviate the danger of the abnormal state of the Peninsula, think they can render prevalent a system more conformable to justice by obtaining concessions and guarantees of a nature to calm the public mind.

Sardinia enjoys the confidence of the unhappy populations whose fate is about to be decided; she has already raised her voice in their favor at the Congress of Paris, and that voice was not only listened to by the most enlightened Governments of Europe, but it has succeeded in calming vexations and angers ready to burst forth; it has disarmed revolution, substituting for it the regular and legal action of diplomacy.

Sardinia, in taking the lead of the national movement, has always exercised the influence it had acquired to combat openly revolutionary passions; instead of exciting the minds of men soured by suffering and deceptions, it endeavored to keep them within bounds, and to lead them to a more healthy appreciation of the events and obstacles which delayed the fulfillment of their legitimate desires. We may openly declare it: If Italy has not been the theatre of new troubles lately, if we have not to deplore insane popular movements, followed by sanguinary reaction, it is to the salutary action and prudent attitude of Piedmont that it must in a great measure be attributed.

As regards the questions which ought to form the object of the deliberations of the Congress, the Cabinet of London is cognizant of the view taken of them by the Government of the King. In the memorandum of the 1st of March it has frankly explained its views, it has pointed out the grievances of the Peninsula, it has indicated the reparations they require. That explanation has been communicated to the Court of London, and it met with a favorable reception. Lord Malmesbury has admitted the moderation of Sardinia, and has rendered homage to her good faith. Thus, whether by its general conduct since the affairs of Italy have taken the first place in the cares of Europe—whether by its declarations clearly formulated as regards the points which now appear to render an immediate solution necessary, the British Government ought to be convinced that the Court of Sardinia will lend a sincere support to all measures which the higa united Powers in Congress may propose in the interest of Italy.

I like to flatter myself therefore that the Cabinet of London will, without difficulty, admit the propriety that Sardinia should be represented in the Congress proposed by Russia.

With this object in view, I beg of you, M. le Marquis, to submit the above observations to Lord MALMESBURY, reading to him and leaving with him a copy of this dispatch. I am, &c.,

C. CAVOUR.

In regard to the mission of the Marquis D'AZEGLIO, the Morning Herald (semi-official) says:

The special mission to our Court with which the Marquis MASSIMO D'AZEGLIO is charged justifies the hope that peace may yet be preserved. This distinguished Sardinian statesman and diplomatist has filled the highest offices in his own country, and for integrity as well as ability ranks second to none. We can hardly conceive that a man so eminent would at this crisis accept a mission unless he had ample grounds for supposing that a successful issue was within its scope. Probably the ardor of the war party may have in some degree abated. Count CAVOUR may be willing to reconsider his former decision on one or two important points. Thus his consent for the admission of Sardinia to the Congress would greatly facilitate matters, while Piedmont might with every show of reason disarm, if the other powers are willing to take this step. Of course we are not in possession of information that would enable us to state what course will be adopted. The fact that a special mission to our Court has been intrusted to this distinguished Sardinian nobleman speaks for itself; and we trust that the Sardinian Government will furnish proofs to Europe and the world that it is not bent upon provoking a contest. We have enjoyed peace so long that we naturally enough are inclined to regard any state that wilfully involves Europe in the horrors of war as altogether unworthy of exerting an influence in the councils of the period.

GREAT BRITAIN.

In the House of Lords, on the 11th, the Earl of HARDWICK intimated that the Earl of MALMESBURY would make his promised statement respecting foreign relations, on Friday the 15th inst.

In the House of Commons Lord PALMERSTON inquired of the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he would state the precise time when he would make his promised statement as to the affairs of Europe. He also hoped Government would state more clearly than they had done when the prorogation and the dissolution of Parliament would take place.

Mr. DISRAELI said it would be convenient for him to make his statement on Friday, the 15th. He expected that the prorogation would take place on Tuesday, the 19th, and the dissolution as soon thereafter as was consistent with decorum.

Sir G. GREY pressed for a more explicit answer; when Mr. DISRAELI protested against being thus called upon to do what no Government had ever been called upon to do under similar circumstances. The Government had no wish whatever to delay the dissolution, but he ought not to be called upon to name the day.

On the 12th, in the House of Commons, Sir B. HALL catechised the Government as to the alleged dismissal or retirement of two or three Lords of the Admiralty because they had refused to stand at the approaching election for the borough of Dover.

Sir J. PAKINGTON explained that it was though highly desirable that the Admiralty should be represented in Parliament by some of the senior Lords, and Captain CRENGIE had been appointed to office on the understanding that he should obtain a seat in Parliament. He had since declined to comply with this condition, and had resigned his office in consequence. Sir R. DUNDAS had also tendered his resignation in preference to entering upon a Parliamentary contest, but it had not been accepted.

Mr. BERKELEY moved his resolution in favor of voting by ballot.

A debate ensued in which Lord JOHN RUSSELL, mildly, and Lord PALMERSTON, strongly, opposed the proposition. It was rejected by 102 to 99. Majority 3.

Rumors had been current that efforts would be made by the opposition to prevent a dissolution of Parliament, but there was little doubt the Ministerial programme would be carried out.

The official Gazette contains an order for prayer and thanksgiving in all the churches on Sunday the 1st of May, for the suppression of the Indian rebellion.

The Gazette also contains the titles of the newly created Peers, viz: Colonel WYNDHAM to be Lord LECONFIELD; Mr. EGERTON to be Lord EGERTON; and Sir CHAS. MORGAN to be Lord TREDEGAR.

Sir HENRY RAWLINSON was expected to succeed Mr. MURRAY as British Minister at the Persian Court.

Lieut. General Sir JOSEPH THACKWELL, an old and distinguished member of the British Army, is dead.

The Indian loan of £7,050,000 had been formally introduced in the London money market. This loan is for seven years, secured on debentures bearing 4 per cent interest. One half of the entire sum is to be paid up on May 3d, and the remainder in June and July.

The Daily News remarks that the present loan may very shortly be followed by a supplemental one of £5,000,000.

The London Times announces the death of M. D. TOCQUEVILLE.

FRANCE.

The Moniteur had published another semi-official article on the relations of France and Germany. After disclaiming any intention on the part of the French Government, of interfering with the independence of the Germanic Confederation, the Moniteur says:

"The French Government has nothing to conceal, because it has nothing to disown. The position it has assumed in the Italian question, far from warranting the distrust in Germany, ought, on the contrary, to inspire it with confidence. France could not think of attacking in Germany what it wishes to shield in Italy. Her policy, which disowns all ambition for conquests, follows only the rules laid down by international law—the happiness of peoples and the interests of Europe. In Germany as in Italy, it wishes nationalities, recognized by treaties, to be maintained and strengthened, because it considers them as one of the essential bases of order in Europe. To represent France as hostile to German nationality is not only an error, but a contradiction. The Government of the Emperor has for ten years exerted its influence to remove difficulties and settle them equitably."

It then criticises the actions of France in respect to Spain, Switzerland, Denmark, the Principalities, &c., and concludes as follows:

"The policy of France has not two weights nor two measures; she weighs in the same scales the interests of all nations. What she intends to make respected in Italy, she will respect herself in Germany. It is not we who will be menaced by the example of a national Germany which would conciliate its federate organization] with the unitary tendencies, the principle of which has been already established in the great commercial union of the Zollverein. Everything which develops in neighboring States relations created by commerce, industry, and progress promotes civilization, and everything which promotes civilization raises France."

The Paris correspondent of the Daily News says that the above article is generally regarded as a preliminary to a declaration of war. It is, in substance a recommendation to Germany to remain quiet while France settles accounts with Austria. The words, especially that what France will cause to be respected in Italy she will know how to respect in Germany, is at once equivalent to an announcement that France is about to fight for Italian nationality.

The Moniteur publishes a decree ordering the apportionment of 100,000 conscripts among the different Departments. This is the whole of the contingent of the year. In ordinary years 80,000, and in some cases only 40,000 have been called out.

Attention to business is said to have affected the Emperor's health, and he had left Paris for a few days' shooting.

Among other unfounded rumors was one that the Austrian Ambassador in Paris had received his passports; and that orders had been given to the army of Lyons to move down to the south.

It was reported that a French Army of Observation, 50,000 strong, was to be concentrated on the frontiers of the Rhine. Also, that four French and Sardinian war-steamers had been dispatched to the Adriatic to be in readiness to blockade Trieste and Venice.

It was stated that a Council of the Marshals was to meet at the Tuileries in a few days,—to be presided over by the Emperor.

The Memorial Diplomatique, a journal which had exhibited a decided leaning towards a pacific solution of the pending difficulties, had received an intimation that the publication must be suspended for the present—that is, so long as the crisis lasts. The demonstration against an advocate of peace was regarded as very significant.

The London Advertiser publishes a dispatch from Berlin, to the effect that it was asserted in military circles that, by the first of June, LOUIS NAPOLEON will have 600,000 men ready to march, of which 150,000 are to be used in Italy, the remainder being for other eventualities.

The Paris correspondent of the London Herald says it was reported that within a fortnight at latest, hostilities would be commenced.

The Globe's Paris correspondent remarks that every item of intelligence points to immediate war.

At the first meeting of the Paris Conference on the affairs of the Principalities, all that took place was the entering of a protest by the Ottoman Ambassador against the recent double election of a Hospodar, and an appeal to the Powers to maintain the Convention of last year in its integrity. No day had been fixed for the second meeting of the Conference.

It is said that the Camp at Chalons will be organized this year at an earlier period than usual, and that the troops to be encamped are more numerous than in any other year.

Fear of war paralyzed all commercial activity, and transactions were confined to purchases from day to day. The Flour and Wheat markets were generally firm, but lower at Orleans. The Protectionists, taking advantage of the political crisis, were pressing their claims on the Government.

The Paris Branch of the Bank of Switzerland had suspended payment, but it was expected to resume in a day or two. The London and Geneva branches were not affected.

The Paris Bourse on Saturday, the 9th, opened dull and lower, but subsequently prices slightly advanced, the Three per Cents. closing at 67 30. On the 11th it was again depressed at the opening, but the final quotations showed a rise of ⅛ ₱ cent. On the 12th the market was excited and buoyant, and the Three per Cents. closed at 68 for money, and 67.85 for account, being an advance during the day of more than ⅛ ₱ cent.

The Herald's Paris Correspondent says, that after a Cabinet Council held on the 11th, a meeting of the Commercial Department of the Council of State was held, at which the Emperor set forth a plan for the gradual removal of all restrictions in the Corn trade.

A Paris telegram of the 12th, to the London Post, states that the English Government proposes that the question of a general disarmament shall be submitted to the Plenipotentiaries as soon as possible after the assembling of the Congress.

SARDINIA.

The Marquis D'AZEGLIO had been sent by the Sardinia Government on a special mission to London. The London Herald says this mission justifies the hope that peace may yet be preserved.

The excitement in Piedmont had reached a high pitch, and arming was carried forward on a formidable scale.

Passports were given by the Roman authorities to volunteers for Piedmontese service from the States of the Church, but with the intimation that they would be regarded as exiles.

NAPLES.

Dispatches from Naples state that the King's malady had become so aggravated that it was believed he would not survive the week.

LOMBARDY.

A dispatch from Turin says: "The attitude of Austria on the frontier is menacing. Reinforcements are every day arriving at Milan and at Pavia. Letters from Milan confirm the authenticity of the account of the belligerent order of the day addressed to the Austrian Army."

On the contrary, however, the Paris Patrie states that the posting of the order of the day in the barracks at Milan was a hoax.

The Austrian troops continued to advance upon the frontiers of Piedmont, and were taking up very threatening positions.

INDIA AND CHINA.

The Calcutta mails of March 9 and those from Hong Kong of Feb. 25 arrived at Alexandria on the 3d of April.

The Governor-General of India had proposed to increase the Customs duties to the extent of £1,300,000 a year as one of the means for relieving the financial embarrassment of the Government.

All was quiet in Oude. TANTIA TOPEE, under the name of RAM SINGH was in Bundlecund. The Begum was in Nepaul.

The Calcutta import markets continued depressed. Freights were dull. Exchange, 2s. 1¾d. The Government Five ₱ Cents. were quoted at 12 and the Four ₱ Cents at 23 discount.

From China there is no political news of importance. Lord ELGIN did not accompany the late expedition up the Canton River, but had started for Hainan.

The French fleet, with a part of the forces, had gone to Segon.

The supplies of tea were very short, and prices were higher at all the ports.

At Hong Kong business was dull. Exchange, 4s. 6½d. @ 4s. 7½d.

At Canton imports were in good demand at an advance.

At Shanghae imports were quiet, but rather better. Silk and teas were dearer. Exchange, 6s. 2d. @ 6s. 3½d.

The Portuguese Governor of Macao had concluded a treaty with Siam.

Advices from Cochin China state that the French squadron and expeditionary party had quitted their station, leaving, however, a party of occupation who had been attacked by the Cochin Chinese, with a loss of 200 men on the French side. Rich gold mines had been discovered at Tonquin.

The above mails reached London on the morning of the 13th, and it was expected that the American portion would arrive at Liverpool just in time to be put on board the City of Washington.

The Return of the Prince Albert.

From the London Times.

GALWAY, Monday.

This morning the inhabitants of Galway were surprised to find that the Prince Albert had returned to the Roads, having sailed on Friday morning for New-York. At first it was currently reported that it was the Circassian which had arrived; but closer inquiry showed that it was the Prince Albert. It was found that she had been obliged to return in consequence of her having sprung a leak. It appears that when she had been at sea for some time a leak was discovered in the forward part of the vessel, it is supposed in that portion where she had been in contact with the ice on her homeward voyage. The pumps having been put to work, it was thought that the water could be kept down, but all the efforts of the officers and crew were unavailing, it still continued to gain on the vessel. Finding it would be dangerous to continue the voyage, Capt. NICHOLSON thought it expedient to return to Galway, where the vessel arrived this morning at 8 o'clock. The passengers were not well pleased at finding themselves again in the Bay of Galway; but it is understood that they will be dispatched in another steamer on Wednesday or Thursday, which will arrive here from Liverpool. The Prince Albert sailed 360 miles in 24 hours after she had started, and had not the unfortunate accident happened she would have made a rapid passage.

Death of M. De Tocqueville.

The London Times announces the death of the distinguished author of Democracy in America; an event for which previous reports of his rapidly declining health had prepared us. The intelligence will be of melancholy interest to the multitudes in this country, who have read that capital production, and of personal regret to the survivors of those who enjoyed the gratification of intercourse with him during his travels through the United States, more than a quarter of a century ago.

ALEXIS CLEREL DE TOCQUEVILLE, a great-grandson of the loyal and philosophic MALESHERBES, was born at Verneuil, July 29, 1805. Having completed his legal studies at Paris, he was named in 1826, Judge of Instruction at Versailles, and in 1830 Alternate Judge. The following year he was selected with his friend E. G. DE BEAUMONT to visit the United States in order to report upon the penitentiary systems of the several States. The first fruit of his expedition was the Democratie en Amérique which he published in 1835. The work was received with extraordinary applause. ROYER-COLLARD described it as "a continuation of MONTESQUIEU;" it had numberless editions, was translated into nearly every European language, and in 1836 received the Montyon prize. The next year, M. DE TOCQUEVILLE was elected to the Academy of Sciences, and in 1841 to a seat in the French Academy. With his journey to America, the judicial career of M. DE TOCQUEVILLE closed. In 1839 he was chosen to the Chamber of Deputies from Valogne, Department of La Manche, retaining his seat until 1848, aiding consistently the opposition to the Administration of LOUIS PHILIPPE. The January of the latter year, he predicted the approach of the revolution, which actually broke out in the month following. The Department of La Manche chose him its representative in the Constituent Assembly, where he distinguished himself by his hearty reprobation of Socialism, but otherwise sustained the Republic. Gen. CAVAIGNAC, during his brief administration, selected M. DE TOCQUEVILLE to represent France in the Brussels Conferences on Italian affairs. On his return from this mission, he was reelected to his seat in the Deputies; and on the 3d of June, 1849, received from the hands of President LOUIS NAPOLEON the portfolio of Foreign Affairs, and advocated the occupation of Rome, with all his powerful abilities. The peculiar views, on this subject, announced in the President's Message of Oct. 31, led to the resignation of the moderate members of the Cabinet, M. DE TOCQUEVILLE among the number. In the Legislative Assembly the ex-Minister at once took position on the benches of the Opposition. On the 2d December 1851, he was one of the deputies who met to protest, against the coup d'état. Imprisoned, with his principal associates, he was presently set at liberty; and finally withdrew to private life. His latest publication was L'ancien Régime et la Révolution, 1856. His closing days have been spent in the South of France, chiefly at Lannes, the seat of Lord BROUGHAM'S Summer residence.

LONDON, April 13—Noon.

INDIA AND CHINA.

HONG KONG, Feb. 26.—The English January mail has not yet arrived. Supplies of tea are now palpably failing, although the tea districts have been swept, and the low qualities now arriving show that there is very little more to come. Looking to quality, the prices paid are extremely high. It is reported that the tea plantation in the Bayshan District is suffering from drought. At Foo Chow the eagerness of buyers since the last advices from England has caused Teas to advance 2 to 3 taels.

At Shanghae, also, a further advance has taken place, and the tendency is still upward, owing to small supplies.

CALCUTTA, March 8.—English advices to Feb. 3, by a telegram from Bombay, report Produce market generally dull. Import market continues depressed. Yarns, though low, are still drooping. Metals generally quiet. Freights very dull, with a downward tendency, to enable ships to load.

The news from India has been for the most part anticipated by telegraph from Marseilles, and the Calcutta advices which are to March 8, are not so late by four days as those by the Bombay mail, which arrived last week. From China there is no political news of any interest.

FRANCE.

LONDON, Wednesday.

The news from Paris, received to-day, is generally of a pacific character, but the correspondent of the Herald says that the warlike preparations of France continues on a most tremendous scale, troops pouring into Lyons from north south, east and west. The Patrie of Tuesday evening contains an article of great significance; that journal is considered as the organ of the Emperor's private Cabinet.

The Patrie speaks of a last and supreme effort which England and Prussia are making on behalf of peace, referring to the proposition of Austria, that there should be a general disarmament. The Patrie asserts, that France is still on a peace footing, she has collected no army on her frontier, she has not applied to the Legislative for a war credit, which Austria, having increased her army in Italy from 60,000 to 100,000, might commence a campaign to-morrow.

The Patrie concludes with a threat in the following words:

"If Austria means that a general disarmament is to result in the maintenance of the status quo in Italy, and not of resolving the imperious difficulties of the present situation, it must not be expected that France will be duped by such a demand."

GERMANY.

The Times contains a letter from Munich, which states that the Cavalry and Infantry of the Bavarian army are to be placed on a war footing. Before the end of the month all Germany will be in arms.

TRIEST, Wednesday.

Advices have been received from Milan to the 11th inst. The official Milan Gazette ascribes a peaceful meaning to the article on existing relations between France and Germany, published in the Moniteur of Sunday last.

Commercial Intelligence.

LONDON MONEY MARKET.

The latest dispatch per Arabia advised great depression in the London Exchange, and a fall of ⅛@¾ ₱ cent. in Consols. The closing quotations on the 9th were 94⅛@⅝. On the 11th the market opened weak, but it suddenly became buoyant under the influences of reassuring rumors from Paris, and Consols advanced to 95@95⅛.

On the 12th the market was steady and comparatively firm, closing at 95@95⅛.

The city article of the Daily News, dated evening of the 12th, says: "Consols showed much firmness throughout the day and closed about 1s. 6d. ₱ cent. above the advanced quotations established yesterday. Great support is still derived from the extensive purchases effected yesterday by influential operators which are countenanced by the receipt of more reassuring statements from several points of the continent as well as by a rally of no less than 3 ₱ cent., which took place this afternoon in the Austrian funds at Amsterdam. [There had previously been a fall of about 9 ₱ cent. at Amsterdam, between the 7th and the 11th inst.] In the Discount market the demand continues active, but the rate for good bills does not exceed 2½ ₱ cent. There were no bullion operations at the Bank to-day."

The shipment of Silver to India by the steamer of the 12th amounted to £691,923 sterling, and Government had already engaged nearly £400,000 for the next mail.

Letters from Marseilles announce the suspension of Messrs. AQUARONE FILS, PORRO & Co., with large liabilities.

The Times' City article, dated evening of the 17th, says: "The repetition, in the Paris Pays, of the worn-out device of quieting the public by a semi-official assurance that the way has at length been smoothed to a removal of every difficulty, produced but a faint effect this morning on the English funds. The public at large do not believe that the Emperor NAPOLEON intends to promote a pacific adjustment on a basis that shall clearly recognize the Treaty rights of Austria, and consequently prove such as can be accepted by that Power, while it will utterly disappoint Sardinia. It is likewise seen that if an arrangement were patched up to-morrow, with the existing feelings of France, Austria, Sardinia and Russia still left in play, the prospects of the repose of Europe would not be in the slightest degree better than at this moment.

In the foreign Exchange, this afternoon, there was a further unfavorable movement in the Austrian rates. Other places were without change of importance.

LIVERPOOL, Wednesday, April 13.

COTTON—The market is dull, and prices for the lower grades are generally quoted 1-16d. @ ⅛d. ₱ lb. easier, while middling to good qualities maintain their value. Stocks are freely offered, but the demand is inactive and the business of the three days ending last evening has not exceeded 21,000 bales including about 4,000 on speculation and for export. Messrs. WM. CLARK & SONS quote Middling Orleans at 7¾d. and Uplands, at 7d.

At Manchester business is very quiet, and in some cases Yarns are rather lower. Goods are inactive but unchanged.

BREADSTUFFS—Messrs. RICHARDSON, SPENCE & Co. report that the more warlike news had imparted more tone to Breadstuffs in general, but a return of pacific rumors caused a quiet market yesterday. Flour was a shade firmer, but quotations still range from 10s. @ 12s. 3d. Wheat was in improved request, and prices were the turn in favor of sellers. Western Red, 8s. 9d. @ 9s. 4d.; White, 8s. 7d. @ 10s.; Southern, 10s. @ 10s. 9d. Corn quiet but steady. Yellow, 5s. 8d. @ 6s.; White, 7s. 2d. @ 7s. 4d.

PROVISIONS—Beef—The war rumors have given rise to a speculative feeling, and holders demand an advance of 2s. 6d. @ 5s. For Pork also a further slight advance is asked, but there are no sales. Bacon—No sales of American, but Irish is slightly dearer. Lard continues neglected. Tallow firm at 54s. @ 54s. 6d. for Butcher's Association.

PRODUCE—Ashes steady. Sales of old Pots at 30s. 3d.; Pearls, 31s. 6d. @ 32s. Sugars quiet. Rice in limited demand at steady prices. Coffee inactive. Resin quiet, at 4s. 6d. for Common. For Spirits of Turpentine 42s. is the price asked. Quercitron Bark slow at previous quotations. Clover and Timothy seeds neglected.

LONDON MARKETS,

BREADSTUFFS firmer, and Wheat 1s. @ 2s. dearer, particularly foreign. SUGAR quiet, and rather easier for grainy. COFFEE dull and in some cases slightly cheaper. TEA in fair demand at full prices. Common Congou, 1s. 1¾d. @ 1s. 2d. RICE wanted and 6d. dearer. TALLOW firm at 53s. 6d. @ 53s. 9d. LINSEED OIL flat at £28 15s. @ £29.

The Latest from Liverpool.

LIVERPOOL, Wednesday, April 13—3½ P. M.

COTTON has been flat to-day, and prices tend downward Sales 5,000 bales—500 for export.

BREADSTUFFS firm, but quiet.

PROVISIONS generally steady.

Produce markets generally without material change.

Arrived to-day—Potomac, from New-Orleans; Rhea and Lady Franklin, Baltimore.

FROM THE PACIFIC COAST.

ARRIVAL OF THE ST. LOUIS.

Extraordinary Passage from California.

Late and Interesting from the Isthmus.

The City of Quito Destroyed by an Earthquake—Five Thousand Lives Lost.

BATTLE BETWEEN THE FACTIONS IN CHILI.

SEVEN DAYS LATER FROM CALIFORNIA.

$1,723,000 IN TREASURE.

INTERESTING FROM JAPAN.

The United States Mail steamship St. Louis, JOHN MCGOWAN, Esq., Commanding, arrived last evening at 6½ P. M. with the mails, treasure and passengers—brought down by the Pacific Mail Steamship Company's steamer Golden Age, which left San Francisco April 5,—and also with the mails from the Isthmus and South Pacific. The trip through was performed in twenty days four hours and forty-eight minutes—the shortest passage recorded.

Our thanks are offered to the Express lines of Messrs. WELLS, FARGO & Co., and of FREEMAN & Co., and also to the Purser of the St. Louis, for obliging favors.

SOUTH AMERICA.

Great Earthquake in Ecuador—The City of Quito Destroyed—2,000 to 5,000 Lives Lost—Blockade of Guayaquil—Peru—Bolivia—Defeat of the Revolutionists—Battle in Chili—Exequatur of the United States Consul to Valparaiso Revoked—Prisoners Condemned to Death—Buenos Ayres, &c., &c.

PANAMA, Sunday, April 17, 1859.

The British steamship Bolivia arrived at Panama on the 6th inst., with dates from Valparaiso to the 16th, Bolivia to the 15th, Callao and Lima to the 27th March, and from Guayaquil, Ecuador, to April 1. The Bolivia brought to Panama the unusually great number of 130 passengers, and $188,703 80 in silver for England.

The news from all parts of South America, with the exception of Peru, is important and interesting.

ECUADOR.

On the 22d day of March, at half-past eight in the morning, an earthquake which shook the mountain range of the Chimborazo for the space of four minutes destroyed almost entirely the city of Quito, and killed from 2,000 to 5,000 persons. The churches, monasteries, convents and State edifices are almost all rent to fragments. The Convent of San Augustin, the Tabernacle de la Capilla, the Temple of the Segrario, the Cathedral, the Convent of Santa Catalina, the Palacio del Obispo, the Chapel of la Merced, the Chapels of the Cathedral, of the Compañia, of the Hospital, of Carmen Vajo, the cloisters of the Convent of Santa Domingo, a part of the Convictorio of San Fernando, are all partially or wholly in ruins. Also, the convents of San Diego, Santa Clara and Santa Barbara. There is scarcely a house in the city that is not badly damaged.

That portion of the Palace occupied by the Minister of the Interior, a great part of the College of San Luis, and the splendid mansion of Dr. ALBUJA, have also fallen. All the principal buildings of the neighboring towns of San Antonio, Cotocolla, Machacha, Chillogallo and Magdalena have been destroyed. The loss of property is estimated at three millions of dollars; and from the poverty of the people it will be impossible to repair and rebuild any great number of the better class of edifices destroyed. The shocks were felt simultaneously in Tacunga, Ambato and Alausi, and in Tinpullo the earth opened in various places. The earthquake was also felt at Quayaquil, but did no damage there.

The temples of San Francisco, del Sagrario and Santa Clara were of beautiful architecture; the temples and convents of Santo Domingo, la Merced and San Augustin, all had fine stone façades and towers; the temples of Santa Catalina and Concepcion, and the Hospital, also had stone façades.

Quito is said to contain about 50,000 inhabitants. It is built on an extensive plain, against the mountains of Panecillo and Pichincha, and is about 9,500 feet above the level of the sea. Most of the houses are two stories, some three, and a part one story. Many are built of burnt brick, with handsome façades, but the greatest portion are unburned brick or above.

The blockade by the Peruvian fleet of the port of Guayaquil continues—consequently commerce and business are dead. On the 20th March there was a little disturbance between some of the boats' crews of the blockading squadron and the Ecuadorians, but happily no blood was shed. Señor MONCAYO, one of the most eminent of the Liberal statesmen of the Republic, has been expelled by the thick-skulled President ROBLES, and has gone to Chili.

PERU.

This Republic is quiet at present. A law setting free all political prisoners in Lima and Callao, except Señores ORBEA, SEVILLA, NOVOA and ROJAS, has been passed by Congress. The Chamber of Deputies also insists upon its resolution to allow all political exiles to return to their country. The Chambers were holding secret sessions, discussing the questions with Ecuador—but it appears there is no chance of an immediate peace.

Dr. FABIO MELGAR, late Collector of the Customs at Callao, has been appointed Minister of Foreign Relations in Peru.

The amount of guano shipped from the Chinchas in February was 16,312 tons—of which 3,828 tons went to England; 10,105 tons to the United States; 553 tons to France; and 1,377 to Barbadoes.

BOLIVIA.

General AGREDA, who headed about 500 men in a revolution against President LINARES, was defeated by the latter, in the vicinity of La Paz, on the 28th February; sixty-five of his men, including several officers, killed, and the balance took refuge on Peruvian soil. Two other small parties of revolutionists were defeated at other points on the 27th, by the National Guard. Ex-President CORROVA has also appeared on the frontiers with a body of revolutionists, but the result of his attempt will probably prove disastrous to him.

JOHN W. DANA, Ex-Minister resident of the United States to Bolivia, is expected at Panama by the next British steamer, en route for Maine.

CHILI.

The revolt in the Southern portion of the Republic, except so far as concerns a few scattered parties of Montaneros and Indians, who have banded together for purposes of robbery, has been completely extinguished, and the leaders are mostly exiled or in prison—many of them under sentence of death.

But in the North there has been bloodshed on a tolerably respectable scale. The Revolutionary force of Coquimbo, and were

SPRING TRADE NOTICE.
IMPORTANT TO
EVERY DRY-GOODS MERCHANT
IN THE UNION.

DR FOREST, ARMSTRONG & CO.
Are now receiving their Spring Importations, and are exhibiting at their SALESROOMS,
NOS. 80 AND 82 CHAMBERS-ST., N. Y., the most extensive, elegant, varied and complete stock of FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC GOODS
ever before offered for sale by them, and presenting attractions and advantages to the trade generally, and from all parts, such as are to be met with in very few places. Their extensive stores on Chambers st., which they occupy entire, enable them to appropriate to each class of goods a separate department, and to have, in fact, so many distinct stocks in their Warerooms, each of which will be complete. Without specifying the articles embraced, they would name the departments, viz.:
DRESS GOODS,
SILKS,
WHITE GOODS AND LINENS,
CLOTHS AND CASSIMERES,
FLANNELS,
SHAWLS AND MANTILLAS,
HOSIERY AND GLOVES,
YANKEE NOTIONS,
DRESS TRIMMINGS,
PARASOLS,
DOMESTICS AND PRINTS.

To their Domestic and Print Department they call particular attention, embracing all the leading makes and styles, which will be sold at the very lowest rates. They have the entire production of the
WARREN PRINTS,

RELIABLE RAILROAD GUIDE,
What makes travelers ask for it is
The great features wherein our Guide excels all others, is in the uniform correctness of the Time Tables, and NOTES OF REFERENCE
at the bottom of each table, showing at what Station you can connect with other Railroads, and by Steamboat or Stages for other places. Also those "Connecting Routes," All, tabetical list of Towns, Hotels &c. &c., with a
SPLENDID RAILROAD MAP
We append an extract of a letter we have had for some time; our extreme modesty has kept it from the public thus long, but as it seems to be fashionable to "blow your own horn" here it is.
"I have traveled over all the principal roads in every State of the Union within the past eight years and never have been one day without 'DINSMORE'S GUIDE,' and would not be, even if they were one dollar each. I have found it almost always correct. It has often been a wonder to me how they can keep it so."—Railroad Traveler.

The Overland Mails from St. Joseph, (Mo.,) to Placerville, vid Salt Lake City, leaves St. Joseph every Saturday, at 8 A. M. Letters should be marked "Overland vid St. Joseph."

Ocean Mails.

The European Mails by the steamship Europa, hence for Liverpool, will close at the New-York Post-office, to-morrow, April 27, at 11½ o'clock.

The Sickles Case.

We have received from our Special Reporter at Washington verbatim reports of the speeches of Mr. CARLISLE, for the prosecution, and Mr. STANTON, for the defence, of Mr. SICKLES. They reached us at too late an hour last night for publication in this morning's TIMES,—but we shall give them in full to-morrow morning. We shall receive, also, a full report of Mr. BRADY'S argument, of Mr. OULD'S reply, and of the charge or instructions of Judge CRAWFORD. If they reach us in season, they will also be given to-morrow; if not, they will be published in the TIMES of Thursday. These speeches are all very long—that of Mr. STANTON alone filling ninety foolscap pages of manuscript;—but their ability and the importance of the case, not only on account of the issues directly involved, but also of the principles and precedents which the decision will establish, warrant their publication in full. The telegraphic reports have been, of necessity, condensed and comparatively meagre.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The screw-steamship City of Washington, from Liverpool on the afternoon of April 13, arrived here yesterday. The intelligence she brings, although four days later than that by the Arabia, is not decisive of the War question. On the 9th the utmost consternation prevailed in the London Stock market, owing to the uniformly discouraging aspect of accounts respecting the War question; a panic which was greatly augmented by a telegraphic announcement in the evening papers, that Austria had actually declared war upon Sardinia. This news proved erroneous by Monday, and gave place to an unauthorized elation, which was heightened by an announcement of a semi-official paper at Paris, the Pays, that Austria had so modified her preliminary demands, as to render the Congress possible. Subsequently, paragraphs from semi-official organs at Vienna and Berlin were telegraphed countenancing the same story, were received, again operating in the interest of the Bulls, and elevating quotations of Consols. But as the only modification appears to be, that, instead of Sardinia alone disarming, Austria and France should do the same, we are left without the slightest reason to anticipate a suspension of the war movement. The preparations for actual hostilities were proceeding at even an accelerated rapidity when the steamer sailed. The general news by this arrival is of secondary interest. The proceedings of Parliament embraced no traits of importance. The members were busied with appeals to their constituencies, and in endeavoring to extract from ministers some indication of the period fixed upon for a dissolution. From France we have an announcement of the death of that eminent publicist, ALEXIS DE TOCQUEVILLE.

The United States Mail Steamer St. Louis arrived at this port last evening, with dates from San Francisco to April 5, and later intelligence from the Isthmus and South America. The trip through from San Francisco is represented as unusually rapid, having been accomplished in 20 days and 9 hours.

The St. Louis brings $1,723,000 in specie from California. The dates from San Francisco by this arrival are to April 5th, seven days later than the advices received by the Overland Mail. The news from the Pacific is unimportant. The principal item is a report of a disaster in San Francisco Bay: four lives having been lost on the 2d of April, by the explosion of the steamer Contra Costa. The markets were glutted, and business was dull.

Our advices from Central America contain notices of an abortive attempt at revolution in Salvador; of a general amnesty in Nicaragua, and of the completion and ratification of the English, Sardinian and American treaties. The Senate of Nicaragua still withholds its assent to the land grants in the Belly contract. The news from the other Central American States is devoid of interest.

Letters from South America announce the destruction of the City of Quito, the capital of Ecuador, by an earthquake. The event occurred on the morning of the 22d of March. The churches, convents, and Government buildings are most of them thrown down, besides many private residences. The houses not thrown down are so injured as not to be habitable. The damage is estimated at $3,000,000. The deaths are reported at five thousand, but this we believe to be greatly exaggerated. A number of small towns to the north of the capital have also been destroyed, and in Guayaquil the shock was felt severely and did some damage.

The revolutionary movements in Chili were still indecisive. An action had been fought at Coquimbo resulting in favor of the insurgents.

The news from New-Granada possesses no feature of interest. At the date of our latest advices from Bogota, April 13, the National Congress was about to adjourn. Its proceedings had embraced no measures of striking importance.

From Japan, news to Dec. 31 reaches us by way of San Francisco. It furnishes us with the names and antecedents of the two Ambassadors, who, with their suites, are to proceed to the United States to ratify the latest Treaty. Cholera has been making frightful ravages in the northern part of the Empire.

We have Turk's Island papers to April 2; they contain no news. The weather was favorable for salt-making; there had been a slight improvement in the demand, but no change in price.

Yesterday, in the Sickles case, the whole day was occupied by Mr. BRADY in his argument in favor of the points of instruction submitted by the defence. It is thought possible that the case may go to the jury to-day, though it may be considered hardly probable.

The counsel for the Oberlin rescuers has applied to the Supreme Court of Ohio for a writ of habeas corpus to take the prisoners from the custody of the United States Marshal. The Court enjoined the Marshal to appear last Saturday to show cause why the writ should not issue. The trial of Mr. LANGSTON is progressing at Cleveland. Mr. BUSHNELL, the convicted prisoner, has been remanded into the custody of the Marshal. The excitement over the trials is increasing throughout Ohio.

The yacht Wanderer sailed from Savannah on the 21st April for Havana, with Mr. LAMAR, her owner, on board. She is to be offered for sale in Havana, but if a purchaser cannot be found, she will be brought to New-York.

The Rev. Mr. VAN LENNEP, American Missionary in Asia Minor, writes to his friends in Hartford, Conn., that the Mission premises at Tocat were totally destroyed by fire on the 6th of March. Mr. VAN LENNEP'S valuable library was lost.

A telegraphic dispatch announces another terrible steamboat disaster on the Mississippi. The St. Nicholas is reported to have burst her boiler near Helena, Ark., causing the loss of seventy-five lives.

Judge WRIGHT, of Albany, yesterday granted the stay of execution applied for in behalf of Mrs. MARY HARTUNG, pending proceedings on a writ of error in her behalf.

At the meeting of the Board of Aldermen, last evening, $1,950 was appropriated to defray the expenses incurred by the Committee appointed to proceed to Albany and oppose the obnoxious legislation with regard to this City. A communication was received from the Comptroller setting forth the confusion in the City accounts which existed when he entered upon the duties of his office, and the measures taken by him to set them right. It was directed that 1,000 copies be printed. A communication from the Mayor, urging the necessity of advertising for a contract for removing night-soil from the City, was referred.

The Board of Supervisors yesterday directed that several bills of little amount be paid, and referred to the Committee on Criminal Courts and Police a communication from the Police Commissioners, urging the propriety of procuring a small steam propeller for the Harbor Police.

In the Court of Oyer and Terminer, yesterday the trial of the alleged murderers of WILLIAM DECKER, at No. 21 Elm-st. on the 15th of January, was resumed. JOHN GLASS it will be remembered, was tried for this crime last week, and convicted of manslaughter in the first Degree. The whole party, consisting of five persons, having demanded separate trials, JAMES HIGGINS was placed at the bar yesterday. The evidence was identical with that given in the case of GLASS, the same witnesses being examined. The verdict also was the same, manslaughter in the first degree. The sentences in all the cases tried during this term in this Court will be pronounced on Saturday.

Yesterday 1,200 bales Cotton changed hands at previous quotations. Flour, Wheat and Corn were depressed. Pork was in lively demand, at, however, irregular rates. Lard and Beef were more freely purchased, and were very firm. Coffee and Molasses were inactive, as were also Naval Stores, Fish, Oils, Rice and Tallow. Linseed Oil was in request at buoyant prices. Sugars were more sought after, and the sales amounted to 980 hhds. Cuba, at 5¼c. in bond, and 6c.@6¾c. free; 82 hhds. New-Orleans, part at 6¼c.@7c.; and by auction, 271 hhds. do., at 6¾c.@6¾c. ℔ lb. Whisky was inquired for, at 25½c. ℔ gallon. The Freight engagements were moderate, at essentially unaltered rates.

The War Question in Europe.

The rumor that Austria had actually declared war against Sardinia, which reached London just before the sailing of the City of Washington, although promptly discredited, was yet held to foreshadow the rapidly approaching event of the European imbroglio. Even the most obstinately prejudiced of the English journals were forced to admit that their new-found protegé, the Emperor FRANCIS JOSEPH, was driving matters rather madly forward, and that the Emperor NAPOLEON had been holding his position with singular calmness, dignity and moderation ever since the opening of negotiations for a Congress. In point of fact, it will be found when the history of this great epoch of cotemporary diplomacy shall come to be fairly written out, that from the first Austria has played the part of aggressor alike upon France, Sardinia and the public law of Europe. The language of the French Emperor on the 1st of January, which has been foolishly misrepresented by the English press, as the opening scene in the new drama, was in truth but the consequence of the policy pursued by Austria ever since her failure to detach France from England, in the Autumn of 1856. Convinced that she had nothing in this direction to hope for, Austria soon turned her attention to England, and has labored steadily for two years to sow distrust of France and hostility to NAPOLEON III., in the English mind. She had succeeded beyond her dreams, thanks to favorable and fortuitous circumstances, when her carcer was suddenly interrupted by the decisive attitude of France in the opening of the present year. The House of Hapsburg can no longer be allowed to advance in its career of insidious conquests. It can no longer be suffered to affect the protectorate of European treaties and public law in the South of Europe, or to hoodwink liberal Europe into acquiescing in its policy of overawing Germany and absorbing Italy. Had no antagonist more intelligent or more determined than Great Britain confronted the Austrian Emperor in his path, a very few years would have sufficed to make the Italian Peninsula an integral part of the new Holy Roman Empire, and to reduce Prussia to the position of a secondary State. It is because he has resolutely undertaken to arrest this march of events, and to defend the lesser nationalities of Central and Southern Europe from the Austrian advance, that NAPOLEON III., in his present position, commands the sympathies, and enlists the hearty good-will of the American people. Our English cousins are beginning to express now, as they expressed in the Crimean war, their amazement and vexation over the un-English tone of the American Press and nation. But the American people have never learned to recognize in any English Government what they gladly find in the popular heart of England—a cordial, timely and practical sympathy with the progressive and liberal ideas of history. When England unfurled her banner against the pretensions of the Czar, it was less the liberator of Turkey than the mistress of India that the American people saw in the armed Britannia. We rejoiced in the heroic gallantry of her troops, we hailed her victories as the triumphs of a kindred race. But we never put any vital faith in the spirit of her policy, and the event has justified our skepticism. On the contrary, much as we disliked the autocracy of NICHOLAS, we felt and feel that, as between Russia and Turkey, our sympathies belonged to Russia.

We have never seen England as a Power interfere to defend the weak in their right, against the strong in their tyranny. We have seen her leave Hungary at the mercy of the oppressor. We have seen her betray Italy again and again to ruin. It is, therefore, but natural that we should refuse her our moral support in her attempts to thwart the resolutions of the first great potentate who has really taken up the question of Italy with the air of a man who means to bring that question to an issue. Throughout the early stages of the impending imbroglio, the feeling of America in favor of Italy and the Emperor of the French has steadily gathered strength. We can afford to smile at the senseless notion that Europe is endangered by the armaments of France—Europe, which for forty years has bowed the knee before the armed phantom of the Holy Alliance! It would now appear that Austria is fast putting herself so openly into the wrong that even England must, for very shame, renounce the attempt to gild her cause with the false pretence of loyalty and law. She is pressing upon Sardinia. Behind Sardinia frown the bayonets of France. In the distance impends the avenging wrath of Russia. The collision, which may already have taken place, will bring into the field, with the legions of NAPOLEON, the good-will, the earnest, emphatic good-will, approbation and sympathy of all who respect International law, and the sacred name of national Independence, throughout the world.

Capital Punishment of Women.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Pardon us for expressing astonishment at the view taken by you in regard to this subject, in a late issue of your paper I alluding to the firmness of the Governor in refusing to commute MARY HARTUNG'S sentence, you hoped he might yet consider the subject further, and allot her a milder punishment, which remark was followed by a wish that "the capital punishment of women might be abolished, and a law passed in this State to that effect." God forbid it! With the tale still ringing in our ears of the murder in this City of a mistress by her servant, by that most diabolical of all means—poison—we repeat, God forbid it! While the human heart is so corrupt—and we remember its Maker made no distinction in the sexes when He said, "Thou shalt not kill"—who will be wiser than He, and say that one-half of the human race may break that commandment with impunity? Should "delicacy and consideration be shown to the sex?" Certainly—while they are women; but when they shake off their sex and become fiends—never. Crime knows no sex—neither should its punishment. Human life is none too safe now; but if every enraged woman might wreak her vengeance on the object of her jealousy—if every insubordinate servant might poison her mistress, to whom she takes a dislike—if wicked men might make tools of weak women to carry out their revengeful designs, knowing that they would escape punishment—who would be safe? Do you say, "Capital punishment is too harsh for the sex?" Then let them avoid the crimes that lead to it, and have the protection of those laws that are "a terror to evil doers, and a praise to them that do well."

A WOMAN.

We are not sure that we do our correspondent a favor by publishing her communication,—but at all events we comply with her request. As she finds it necessary to misrepresent the views of the TIMES, in order to make out her case, it is scarcely worth while to enter into any argument upon the subject. Few of our readers need be told, we trust, that the TIMES has never suggested that women should be allowed to commit murder "with impunity," or that "insubordinate servant girls" should be permitted to "poison their mistresses, knowing that they would escape punishment." These strong statements are little tricks of rhetoric by which "A Woman," would know, if she were a little more familiar with logic, any controversialist loses a good deal more than he gains.

Our correspondent is mistaken in supposing that a woman ceases to be a woman the moment she commits a crime. It is all very well to call her "a fiend,"—it sounds virtuous, and all that;—but it would be just as sensible to say that a man ceases to be a man under the same circumstances, and should therefore be treated like a brute or tortured like a devil. Precisely the same differences, mental, moral and physical, exist between men and women when they are criminals as when they are not; and if it is ever proper and decent to recognize those distinctions—it women are ever to be treated with greater delicacy and a more respectful regard for appearances on account of their sex—justice, decency and self-respect alike require that it should be extended to them in meting out punishments for crime as well as at other times.

Now all we have said on this subject is that women should not be hung,—that this style of punishment, horrid, ghastly and revolting under all circumstances, is too ghastly and too horrid to be thought of when the victim is a woman,—and that society will consult its own self-respect, and do something to preserve that feeling of regard for womanhood, without which it degenerates into coarse brutality, by substituting some mode of punishment for women less horrible and less revolting.

A FORCED INTERPRETATION.—The Philadelphia North American argues that the Derby Ministry obviously disbelieves in the imminence of war, or they would not have dissolved Parliament, "thus disarming themselves as a great crisis approached." Reflection would probably have suggested to our contemporary that the course adopted by the Ministers authorizes an entirely opposite construction. Constitutional precedents gave them no alternative but either to dissolve Parliament or resign office. The latter horn of the dilemma would have left the country without a Government, and, in the present disjointed condition of the Opposition, with but a slight chance of obtaining one for some weeks. The former retained in office a Government still conducting negotiations it had instituted for the maintenance of peace; and ready for any turn affairs were likely to take. If the election they have made is, therefore, in any sense prophetic, it augurs war rather than peace. We suspect, however, the foreign topic had nothing to do with it.

A CASE OF REAL DISTRESS.—We tender our heartfelt sympathies to the Evening Post, and kindred journals, which have been rejoicing in the prospect of a woman's execution. Mrs. HARTUNG is not to be hung to-morrow. The vision with which these Journalists have been solacing their souls, fades away into the uncertain future. Next to the defeat of a Republican Candidate for School trustee, in some interior village of Wisconsin, no more heart-rending misfortune could possibly have overtaken our Rhadamanthine contemporary. Judge WRIGHT of the Supreme Court has granted a stay of proceedings until a writ of error can be prepared and argued. The Post must wait.

The Central Park.

A clear and very satisfactory sketch of the Central Park, as it is and as it is to be, has just been issued in the form of a pamphlet entitled, "A Guide to the Central Park," by Messrs. A. O. MOORE & Co., of Fulton-street. In this little work, written by "An Officer of the Park," New-Yorkers may learn that our noble metropolis is at least to have a public pleasure-ground worthy of its rank among the cities of the world, and adequate to the wants of its vast population. The Central Park comprises an area larger than the combined areas of St. James', the Green Park, Hyde Park and Kensington Garden, in London; and under the skillful superintendence of Mr. OLMSTED, its peculiarities of position and soil have been proved to be natural advantages rather than the disadvantages they were at first supposed to be. The rolling soil is not too rocky for the requirements of the Park in the way of roads and walls, and the entire absence of pine trees has left the architect at liberty to construct his plans with a simple reference to its ultimate unities of effect. "The New-York of the next century," we are told, "will have occasion to rejoice over what now seems an objection to the site of the Central Park." The execution of the plan adopted for the Park by the Commissioners fairly began June 1, 1858, since which time about 2,500 men and 400 horses, besides a large force of engineers, foremen, &c., have been steadily at work. At the rate of the past year the Park will probably be completed, except in the items of final ornamentation, by the Autumn of 1860; while the roads and walks of that portion lying between Fifty-ninth and Eighty-sixth streets will probably be completed and thrown open to the public during the current year. The "Ramble," a space of forty acres, about as large as the famous Common over which Boston keeps up such a constant cackle, is now ready for public use, and augurs well, by the beauty of its design, for the general future effect of the whole Park.

The Guide to the Park gives some useful directions to visitors who wish to enjoy the pleasure of seeing how efficiently the admirable project of this Park is now carrying out, and points out the best ways of reaching the Park, either on horseback, on foot, or by the City railways. If the Park had no other value, it would be of immense service to the community, as an almost isolated evidence that a really great public work can be undertaken and carried out with spirit, economy and success, even in New-York, when the control of it is committed to energetic men, utterly free from party views and political objects.

THE SICKLES TRAGEDY.

Trial of Daniel E. Sickles for the Murder of Philip Barton Key.

NINETEENTH DAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

Argument of James T. Brady, Esq.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Monday, April 25.

The Sickles case will no doubt be submitted to the jury to-morrow, as in the arguments on his instructions prayed for, both sides have presented the case to the jury. Mr. STANTON'S argument on Saturday is the theme of universal praise, while Mr. BRADY to day fully met the public expectation.

[FROM THE REPORTER FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

WASHINGTON, Monday, April 25.

The court-room was crowded this morning to its utmost capacity, for fully a quarter of an hour before Judge CRAWFORD took his seat, and a large number of persons besieged the doors, seeking vainly for admittance.

Among the spectators to-day are Gen. Churchill, U. S. A., and Milton Whitney, District-Attorney for Baltimore.

As Mr. Sickles entered and moved towards the dock, he was warmly greeted by many of his personal friends.

Mr. Brady proceeded to argue the instructions on behalf of the defence. He was quite sure his Honor would extend to him during the argument he was about to make, the same polite attention which he had hitherto received, and which he was delighted to acknowledge. He should endeavor to confine himself cautiously to the proper discharge of the particular duty devolved upon him. He felt and his client felt the great importance of endeavoring to convince his Honor's judgment of the propriety of the prayers which they asked his Honor to instruct the Jury. He would not go over the same ground as his learned associate (Stanton,) had gone over, but would confine himself to these matters which his associate had slightly passed over. There was a great difference of opinion between the counsel for the defence and the counsel for the prosecution, as to the principles on which this case rested, and the counsel for the prosecution (Carlisle,) was in error in saying that the instructions asked for by the defense were purely of an abstract character. The prosecution had commenced by showing a case which might be termed assassination, and which showed, in more of its aspects, mitigation or alleviation. The District-Attorney had represented the prisoner as a walking magazine, an animated battery going out from his house on the morning of the homicide determined to turn all his engines of destruction against Mr. Key. He is represented as knowing Key to be unarmed, and as having given the deceased no opportunity of defending himself, but in a cowardly manner shot him down. That statement, however, was utterly unsustained by the evidence adduced for the prosecution. Every man would have been surprised if the evidence had been allowed to stop there, showing only the mortal meeting of those two men, who had been hitherto fast friends. If the case had stopped there, would not the whole world say that in such a case there must have been either insanity or justification. While the prosecution thus presented this case in the opening the counsel for the defence had suggested that their defence rested on two grounds. He had seen in the newspapers criticisms on the defence, that the two theories were inconsistent, that if the act were justifiable the defence of insanity should not have been set up. The defence, however, held that if the act was not held in law to be justifiable they should have the benefit of the defence of insanity. These views had elicited the defences of justification, of homicide in consequence of provocation, and of insanity, and it was in reference to these three defences that the requests had been prepared. He must here take issue with the prosecution in reference to what the jury were to do. He had put an inquiry on that point to the District-Attorney some days ago, but he had not heard a satisiactory answer since. That which he esteemed to be the ablest ruling on that point was to be found in the case of the State vs. Croteau, vol. 23, Vermont Reports, p. 14, where this rule is laid down. This power of a jury is doubtless liable to abuse, and so is the power conferred on a Court, or on any other human tribunal. But while a jury or court keep within their proper sphere of jurisdiction, they are in the exercise of the powers conferred on them, and are in the performance of a legal right, and this, though they may, by the abuse of the power, be guilty of a moral wrong. The extent of the jurisdiction of a court or jury is measured by what they may or may not decide with legal effect, and not by the correctness or error of their decision. Thus the butcher, Jeffreys, by virtue of his office as Judge, had the political power, and consequently the legal right to conduct the trial of Algernon Sidney, and to give his opinion upon the law of the case in his charge to the jury, though for his shameful abuse of the right he may have incurred the deepest moral condemnation. So the jury in a criminal trial have the legal right to decide the law as well as the fact involved in the issue; but this does not give them a right, by a wanton disregard of law, to decide arbitrarily. The counsel also referred to a ruling of Chief Justice Shaw, delivered in the Supreme Court of Massachusetts. He did not wish, in the present state of the case, to refer to these authorities for any other purpose than to show that they were consistent with the spirit of his Honor's ruling on various occasions. The counsel referred to Judge Crawford's ruling in the Herbert case. If he could believe that the view of the counsel for the prosecution were correct, proud as he was of having been born in this land, proud as he felt in her great destinies, he would rather live under the worst despotism on the face of the earth. I verily believe, continued the counsel, that next to the integrity of the Judiciary, which I hope will always continue, as it has done in the past, to adorn our national character, next to that is the importance of preserving the trial by jury, especially in criminal cases, intact. I do not recognize in the Declaration of American Independence, in the statement of all the abuses that led to the revolt of the American Colonies, anything set up as the occasion for the war of the Revolution that compares in importance with the right of trial by jury as it now exists in this land, and much as I abhor the shedding of blood, and cowardly as I might be found when the moment of danger approached, I would be willing to lay down my life, and wade to any extent in the blood of the foe to prevent that palladium of liberty from being invaded for one moment.

Turning our attention now to that Sunday morning, and to that point of contact, let us see who the parties to it were. Each was in the rank of gentleman, each a lawyer, each a man in public office. Looking at the relations that had existed between them as perfectly established in this case, we find that they had been close personal friends; we find that Mr. Sickles had to the best of his capacity urged the appointment or retaining in office of Mr. Key; that Mr. Sickles was desirous he should continue to discharge the duties of District-Attorney; we find that Mr. Sickles had recommended clients to him; had employed him as his own counsel, and had given him free access to his house in the exercise of that hospitality prevailing in this District, to which my associate (Mr. Stanton) has so ably referred, and to which before I go away—perhaps never to return—I, as a stranger, want to bear cheerful and heartfelt testimony. In view of all these facts there is no man in the District, possessed of any intellect, who, knowing anything of the antecedents of Mr. Key and Mr. Sickles, could have supposed that Mr. Sickles walked out of his house that Sabbath morning, left his home and his wife, and that darling blossom of his heart—that child who has been polluted by the touch of the adulterer—could have walked out of his house in the light of day, under the blessed sunlight, and in the face of Heaven, and committed an assassination on the person of his friend. Therefore your Honor asks, the jury asks, and the whole world asks, how this thing was? The whole world, your Honor, has its eye on this case, and although there may seem to be egotism involved in the remark which I make, I cannot help saying, because I am here in the discharge of my duty, that, when all of us shall have passed away, and when each shall have taken his chamber in the silent halls of death, and while some of us would have been totally forgotten but for this unfortunate incident, the name of every one associated with this trial, from your Honor who presides in the first position of dignity to the humblest witness that was called on the stand, will endure so long as the earth shall exist. The whole world, I say, is watching the course of these proceedings and the nature of the judgment; and I believe I know what kind of a pulsation stirs the heart of the world—I think I know, if the earth could be resolved into an animate creature, could have a heart, and a soul, and a tongue, how it would rise up in the infinity of space and pronounce its judgment on the features of this transaction. Now, with these two gentlemen thus coming together, with the fact before us that the District-Attorney (Mr. Key) had been consulted as counsel for Mr. Sickles in relation to the very house which Mr. Sickles occupied at the time when Mr. Key was one of his most cherished guests, I will be permitted, in favor of the instructions, to which I will presently refer, to put before your Honor a very brief outline as to the undisputed facts in regard to the meeting of Mr. Sickles and Mr. Key. I will by sufficient testimony endeavor to daguerreotype the event precisely as it occurred. These gentlemen are brought into contact; a loud conversation occurs which no witness undertakes to give: after a loud conversation there is heard what may be a scuffle between these parties, so that to Mr. McCormick's eyes it was a street fight, and he could imagine it to be nothing else; in the course of the encounter Mr. Sickles drew a pistol and fired a certain number of shots, which took effect; at what time this occurred, in what position Mr. Key was left, is a matter of dissension and doubt. The testimony of the prosecution is conflicting. The result was that Mr. Key received his death-wound, and was taken to the Club-house, and, shortly after, there were found near the spot, an opera-glass, which belonged to him, and a Derringer pistol. To whom did this pistol belong, and who used it in this encounter? No witness pretends that it was in the possession of Mr. Sickles; he had nothing but a revolving pistol. There is no statement, hint or insinuation from any witness that he had any other weapon. The conclusion that he had is entirely excluded by the proof. I ask who owned the Derringer pistol? You remember what proofs we proposed to give about Key's being prepared for any emergency. In view of the facts of that collision, that pistol belonged to Key, and was used by him in that encounter. This is made conclusive, although the personal friends of Key have been around this table, watching the result of this trial, including Mr. Jones, with steadfast and searching interest; not one has asked whether this Derringer pistol was in Key's possession; no witness was brought here to say whether Key had such a pistol: not one, who attended to his domestic affairs, who brushed his clothes, was asked by his friends or associates, or permitted to state, whether this pistol belonged to Key?

Mr. Brady then read the first, second and third instructions heretofore presented by the defence:

First—There is no presumption of malice in this case, if any proof of "alleviation, excuse or justification" arise out of the evidence for the prosecution. (State vs. John, vol. 3 Jones, p. 366; McDaniel vs. State, vol. 8 Smead's and Marshall's, p. 401; Day's case, 17 of pamphlet.)

Second—The existence of malice is not presumable in this case, if on any rational theory, consistent with all the evidence the homicide was either justifiable or excusable, or an act of manslaughter—(Same cases as above cited; United States vs. Mingo, vol. 2, Curtis C. C. R. 1; Commonwealth vs. York, Vol. 2 Bennett & Heard, Leading Criminal Cas., p. 505.)

Third—If, on the whole evidence presented by the prosecution, there is any rational hypothesis consistent with the conclusion that the homicide was justifiable or excusable, the defendant cannot be convicted. He cited the United States vs. Mingo, 2d Curtis' Circuit Court Reports. Mingo, and Johnson, the deceased, had served on board the same ship, on its way from Apalachicola to Boston; the defendant was a Haytian negro, and the deceased a colored man from Baltimore; Johnson was armed with a hatchet, and Mingo with a knife; Johnson received three stabs; expressions of anger and ill-feeling before the murder were heard, but as to which party made the attack, at what time of the affray either armed himself, and what were the words used, the testimony of nine witnesses who saw the affray, was contradictory. In this case a revolver was in the hands of Mr. Sickles, and a Derringer in those of Mr. Key, and there was no mortal to gainsay it. A number of witnesses have been examined for the prosecution here. There no one gave the origin of the transaction. Mingo gave Johnson three stabs. Mr. Sickles fired three shots, although but one was mortal. Am I not right in saying no mortal, in view of the Derringer pistol, knows what were the words or the provocation at the moment of collision, and what was really the position of the parties. Did not Mr. Sickles accuse him of having dishonored his house, and may not Mr. Key have replied, "I have, and you can make the best of it," and this reply may have been accompanied by profanity—he drawing the opera-glass for one purpose and the Derringer for another. Who can say anything I have stated is inconsistent with the testimony adduced? I only ask that you rest the case on the ground it was placed by Mr. Stanton, who has so adorned it by his eloquent powers.

We stand on the law of God, on the law of man, on justice, irrespective of the question of insanity. Before entering more particularly into this justification, let me say that my learned friends produced the bullet found in the person of Mr. Key, and which produced the mortal wound. When the bullet was produced I supposed it would fit the Derringer pistol, and, therefore, an effort was made to connect Mr. Sickles with that—but unfortunately the bullet would not fit the Derringer pistol. The bullet which killed Mr. Key came out of the revolver. What then became of the bullet from the Derringer, which was found to be exploded. Mr. Brady then referred to the charge of Judge Curtis, in the case recited against Mingo, the Court holding it was incumbent on the Government to prove felonious killing, and if on the whole evidence the Government failed to satisfy the jury that the act was felonious beyond a reasonable doubt, there must be a verdict of not guilty. But I do not think, Mr. Brady said, that the Government has proved, as required, a "case of murder beyond all reasonable doubt." If that case was more confused than this, I am not able to perceive it. I never saw Mr. Key but once, and did not see his face then, but whatever else might be said about him, none of his friends, or anybody who knew him, would say that he would not in a proper case, under rightful provocation, fight, and I suppose he would stand in the same category as described in the case I have just read, which says: "Both being on the deck, angry words passed between them; both being excited and ready for a fight, armed themselves simultaneously; both fought, and Johnson was killed;" the jury, in view of all the facts, acquitted Mingo.

Mr. Brady referred to the Judge's ruling in the case of Day, saying he had made those remarks to show that the prayer of defence was not an abstract proposition; not an hypothesis of which there is no proof to warrant. If so, your Honor could not listen to it a moment. It is the fact that four shots were fired in this case, and, from the evidence as it stands, only three were fired from the pistol of Mr. Sickles. As to the fourth shot, I am not called on to say or know who fired it; but I am permitted to say that that Derringer pistol belonged to Mr. Key, and the evidence shows that it was used in this encounter. There is one circumstance the most conclusive in the world. The gentleman who came from the Club House understood this thing as I do, that there was no reason for making against Mr. Sickles any accusation. The Club-House was the resort of Mr. Key. His friends were there in numbers, at the time in question. When it was ascertained that Mr. Key was lying near the door in a dying condition, these personal friends, gentlemen of character, no doubt, of courage, and feeling alive to the importance of maintaining the law, having a just abhorrence of blood, and looking on assassination with disgust—coming to the scene, did not interfere to prevent Mr. Sickles from firing. They heard from Mr. Sickles the remark: "He has defiled my bed," or "dishonored my house," and allowed him to pass away entirely unmolested; no one crying "Shame," or "Murder;" no one calling an officer, or attempting to arrest him. A jury, made up of Mr. Key's friends, might say he might walk free as any citizen; no one to stay his steps. The fifth prayer as presented by the defence is, it is for the jury to determine, under the circumstances of the case, whether the act charged upon Mr. Sickles is murder, or justifiable homicide. When we prepared the instructions, we supposed we had conformed to your Honor's ruling in previous cases. In this connection I remark, in passing, that the case of Ryan is an authority directly in point, that it is for jury, on all the evidence as to the husband slaying an alleged adulterer with his wife, to say whether it is murder or manslaughter. We drew these instructions on that. When Mr. Carlisle said the instructions were drawn adroitly, he gave us credit for what rests in himself. I think in shrewdness and sagacity he has no superior. We have done just what is right on this particular point.

Mr. Brady answered Mr. Carlisle's argument, saying that the provocation, as we claim, was on the instant before Mr. Sickles went out, and if it had existed before that it would not detract from the influence of the last provocation, but make it the stronger and more controlling. The waving of the handkerchief was admitted—white handkerchief. Mr. Key was unfortunate in its selection. A handkerchief of that color, even among the most savage nations of the earth, is regarded as emblematical of purity, peace, good faith; of regard for hospitality, and protection against treachery. The color of the flag of truce is that which was selected in this case. I hope I may be pardoned by my learned brethren for this remark, in passing, made not in anger, but sorrow, with all the feelings which belong to me. It would have been well if Mr. Key had attached as much importance to the dignity of a banner as did his distinguished sire, and had always within him a fresh recollection of those lines which identified him with the flag of our country wherever seen on earth. If he had remembered that the star-spangled banner has been raised everywhere, in the wilds of Africa, and on the mountain hight, by the adventurous traveler, he would never have chosen that foul substitute for its beautiful folds. He would never have forgotten these two lines:

"And thus be it ever when freemen shall stand Between their loved homes and the war's desolation."

If his noble father inculcated in lines imperishable the duty of the American people to protect their homes against the invasion of a foe, how does it become less a solemn duty of the American citizen to protect his home against the invasion of the traitor, who, stealing into his embraces under the pretext of friendship, inflicts a deadly wound on his happiness, and aims also a blow at his honor? Now, this raises up at once before us the question of adultery and its consequences, to which my learned associate so well referred—it brings to us, with regard to the use of that handkerchief, of that foul banner which polluted the atmosphere of Washington, the suggestion of our brother Stanton, that the common law to be enforced in this District was the common law that should be found to consist with our habits, customs, social condition, and institutions. It recalls to our mind what he said as to adultery being a crime generally recognized on the whole face of the earth, and punished by all nations as a crime. It has never ceased to be a crime in the estimation of the jurists of England. I am furnished by a gentleman of great ability and distinction, of profound erudition, who has cast his lot among the people of this District, my friend, Prof. Dimitry, whose name I am happy to mention with honor, with this very brief abstract of the law of humanity, with respect to this offence of adultery:

First—Among the Jews, by the law of God, the adulterer or adulteress were both stoned to death.

Second—In Greece, Lycurgus decreed that adultery should be punished the same as murder.

Third—The Saxons, by their law, burned the adulteress to death, and over her ashes reared a gibbet on which the adulterer her accomplice, was hanged.

Fourth—Some of the Northern nations of Europe suspend the adulterer to a hook—istis quibus pecasset partibus—and left him a sharp knife, with which he was compelled to inflict self-punishment, or expend his guilty life in protracted torture.

Fifth—In England, in the reign of Alfred, the woman was shorn and stripped to the waist, driven away from her husband's house, and, in the presence of all her relations, was scourged from tything to tything, until death ensued; while the adulterer was strung up to the next tree.

Sixth—In France, under the laws of Louis the Debonair, both parties suffered capital punishment.

Seventh—Constantine inflicted capital punishment against adulterers of both sexes, and Justinian, in his reformation of the code, left the same penalty menacing male adulterers.

Eighth—In the vicissitudes of time, adulterers were condemned to be scourged and banished, or scourged and doomed to row for life in the galleys of France.

Ninth—The Spanish laws deprived the adulterer of that through which he had violated the laws of society and the sanctity of the marriage bed.

Tenth—In Portugal, the adulterer was burned to death with the adulteress; but if the husband chose to save his guilty wife from this fearful chastisement, she was set free with a fine. I feel that I am warranted, continued Mr. Brady, in saying, when compelled to speak of the sin of Mrs. Sickles because it is a necessary part of this transaction, that, in consideration of her extreme youth, and of the moral power which a man like Mr. Key might exercise over her, or some worse power, under the circumstances to which I will not refer—it is not wrong that, in our own hearts, and perhaps not wrong that down deep in the heart of my friend measure it' It is not necessary to fix the exact point of time at which it commenced and at which it terminated. Counsel here referred to the cases of Day and Jarboe, adjudicated to this Court, pages 7, 9, 17 and 20 of pamphlet, and to the charge of Judge Allison in the Sherlock case. In the Day case the instructions to which he specially referred, were drown up by Mr. Carlisle, and, observed counsel, it is remarkable how opposite the language of Mr. Carlisle in that case is to the circumstances of the case. He only asked that the same instructions should be given now. He hoped His friend would not find it uncomfortable to see his own language in that case now made the instrument of the opposition. If so, he could sympathize in the spirit of the following quotation:

"So the struck eagle stretched upon the plain,
No more amid the rolling clouds to soar again,
Sees his own feather on the fatal dart
Which wing'ed the shaft that quivers in his heart."

The evidence of the waving of the handkerchief had been admitted without objection, and the Court had admitted it to prove the fact of adultery. For what purpose was this evidence received unless it was intended that it should be offered as a justification? If it is no justification and no excuse, what has it to do with this trial? The Court received it also with reference to the state of the prisoner's mind, and so the counsel for the prosecution must have regarded it when they made no objection to the introduction of evidence to prove Mr. Key's manœuvers, watching, sneaking, spying round Mr. Sickles's house, stationing himself in that square in the presence of the monument (Jackson's) of one who, whatever one may think of his political opinions, was a gallant and brave man. That monument should have held in suspense his depraved lusts while he was standing there inspecting Mr. Sickles's house with an opera-glass. He might be permitted to refer in this connection to the case of a young man who indiscreetly, zealous to serve the purposes of his country, made his appearance within the lines of the enemy's camp, within the territory held by the enemy, was arrested, tried and condemned to death; he begs for the privilege of a soldier's death; it was refused him, and he was hung high on a gibbet! the commanding officer—that immortal man whose name graces and gives dignity to the city in which we are assembled—refused the request, and Major Andre, in the flower of his life, suffered an ignominious death, applied to him deliberately by one of the wisest and best of mankind, because he was a spy in the camp of the foe. But here was this spy engaged in the bad effort to commit domestic treason, for which he suffered death—a death, the counsel hoped, no good man would regret. The counsel then stated in detail the circumstances developed in the evidence, by which the fact of the adultery had been made known to him, and described Mr. Sickles' feelings when the truth was forced home upon him. Mr. Sickles, said he, remarked the confidence he had bestowed on Mr. Key; he felt how he had been betrayed; all the emotions of his nature changed into one single impulse; every throb of his heart brought distinctly before him the great sense of his injuries; every drop of his blood carried with it a sense of his shame; an unextinguishable agony about the loss of his wife, an appreciation of the dishonor to come upon his child, a realization that the promise of his youth must be forever destroyed, that the future which had opened to him so full of ornimacy, had been enshrouded perhaps in eternal gloom by one who, instead of drawing the curtain over it, should have invoked from the good God his greatest effulgence on the path of his friend. He remembered how in a city where he had come to be the guest of the nation, in a city distinguished for its splendid hospitality, a city which for the time he had made his home, the man whom, above all others, he might have expected to cherish and sustain and protect him, had proved to be his implacable, hypocritical, treacherous and detestable foe. With that great sense of his injuries, he rushes out on Pennsylvania avenue, and, although a man whom every one knows—your Honor knows, the jury and spectators know—is measured and steady and even in his gait at ordinary times, he passes, with all possible rapidity, down Pennsylvania-avenue—he attracts the attention of Mr. Monem and of the Rev. Dr. Pyne, a learned and estimable gentleman, his eyes are observed—they are vacant in their stare—the expression of his countenance is all altered—each of these gentlemen perceive some great agony—some great affliction—some great change affecting his whole nature—and so he passes to his home. How do you see him there? What are the incidents of the Saturday night? In feverish unrest he paces that chamber of suffering more ferocious than the caged and starved tiger—thinking through the whole night of nothing but these reflections to which I have alluded, and which darkened the past, the present, and the future. Think how on that Sunday morning he made this exhibition to which the witnesses have referred, when he saw Mr. Key with his opera glass for inspection or for spying, with his handkerchief to make the adulterous signal, and with the keys in his pocket of the house in Fifteenth street, to which he was about to take Mrs. Sickles at that moment if he could obtain her person. There was Mr. Key with all the weapons of moral death around him, going to make war upon Mr. Sickles and his wife and child. He is seen by Mr. Sickles. He is seen by Mr. Sickles to pass his house and to wave this handkerchief, and Mr. Sickles exclaims, as your Honor properly permitted to be proved, that "that scoundrel has passed the window and has waved his handkerchief." Then he disappears from the view of all the witnesses until we come to the scene of the homicide. Was before Mr. Sickles thus passed out of that house with the full knowlege that that iniquitous salutation was given to his wife to leave her child and husband on that Sabbath day and go and be polluted again in that house of bad repute in Fifteenth street, Mr. Key had been standing in front of the Club-house or in the park with his opera-glass in his hand, he saw Mr. Sickles go out and pass up the street in which his house is; at that instant Mr. Key goes round the other way to go round Lafayette-square; Mr. Sickles is now gone, and Key may be a little bolder; he may have a little less caution, and more courage than ordinarily; he is now certain of his victim; he has the handkerchief, the opera-glass, the keys, the locks waiting to receive them, the intent in his mind being exclusively to employ all the intellectual of his physical and moral nature to commit the act of adultery; Mr. Sickles sees him thus, as all of us, his counsel, undoubtedly think, engaged, within the meaning of law, in the act of adultery; he sees him engaged in the act, as one of a set of burglars who watches at the corner while his confederate is breaking into the safe of an unsuspecting merchant is in the contemplation of law engaged in the act of ourm story; Mr. Key, with the means of thus having the person of Mrs. Sickles in these approaching the house of Mr. Sickles, supposing that he had entirely eluded the latter; he is eager so he thought certain to obtain the wife. At that moment he is met by Mr. Sickles. If that be not taking a man in the act of anultry, I would like the learned counsel for the prosecution to tell me what it was. And if Mr. Sickles, having a weapon in his possession, which he had been accustomed to carry for reasons which we need not declare, with the realization of all these facts pressing down with terrific weight on his mind and heart and soul, thus meeting Mr. Key, and understanding thoroughly the vile purpose of his heart, was not to shoot him, I ask my learned brother to tell me what he was to do?

I would like to ask all assembled humanity what he was to do?—to bid him Good morning—to pass him silently by—to avert his eye? Daniel E. Sickles, a man of unblenching and unvaried courage—as I know from the past associations of our lives—let Philip Barton Key believe that he could not only seduce his wife, but cow him! If he had done anything more or less than become a man under these circumstandes, whatever may have been the intimacy of our past relations, I would have been willing to see him die the most ignominious death before, would venture to raise anything in his behalf but a prayer to Heaven for the salvation which after death might come. [Applause.] He did meet him; he met him under the influence of intense provocation, provocation fresh upon him; and here, your Honor, unless I have totally misunderstood the indisputable facts in this case, this question of cooling time disappears entirely, if indeed there is any such thing as cooling time applicable to such a case. It was not thought so in the case of Bowyer, when a month intervened, and it was not thought so in the other cases, where a longer time intervened. With all deference to your Honor, and to my learned opponents, I respectfully submit, that the phrase "cooling time" has no kind of application to such a case as we have here; but is confined to cases of combat, collision, affray and physical violence, between two contending beings. We know, just as well as we know that there is breath in our bodies, that it is idle to talk about cooling time in relation to the husband who knows that his wife has been seduced whom he pressed closest to his bosom, and if the laws of the land do say that there is any time in a career of twenty millions of years, when the indignation of the injured husband grows cool in relation to the adulterer of his wife, I hope I am not irreverent in saying that those laws of man are in direct hostility to the unmistakeable laws of God. In this connection, and in reference to the subject of malice, which here naturally associated itself with the question of cooling time, counsel referred to the case of the State against Will, 18 Devereux, and Battelle, 165, and argued that in view of the exclamation made by Mr. Sickles at the moment of the homicide, that the deceased had defiled his bed, the presumption of malice was all gone, and in the language of the Judge in the case referred to, "the act must be referred to the present and declared motive, the effect to its immediate cause, and not for light reasons to any preconcerted purpose." He argued that there was no evidence in this case that did not necessarily exclude the belief that Mr. Sickles could have had any preconcerted motive, any malice, or any deliberate desire of revenge as against Mr. Key. He referred to the case of the State against Mann, vol. 10, Humphrey p. 529, as to the question of provocation he called his Honor's attention to the following passages from Blackstone's Commentaries, vol. 4, chap. 14: "Of which life, therefore, no man can be entitled to deprive himself or another, but in some manner, either expressly commanded in or evidently deducible from those laws which the Creator has given us, the Divine laws—I mean of "either nature or revelation." Second, in some cases homicide is justifiable rather by the permission than by the absolute command of the law, either for the advancement of public justice, which, without such indemnification, could never be carried on with proper vigor, or in such in such instances where it is committed for the prevention of some atrocious crime which cannot otherwise be avoided." He spoke of the well-known principle of law, that a man may be convicted of rape even on a prostitute, and that she may in resisting the aggressor take his life.

Look at Mr. Sickles, and look at that poor girl; for, positively, although the mother of a child, she is a girl, accessible to the influence of a master intellect, though the sphere of its mastery be even in a region of seduction! And look at that young child, standing between its father and its mother, equally influenced by the great laws of the Creator to go toward either, and destined to leave one! No judgment of Solomon can prevail here; but, perhaps, as in the case of the rival mothers, it might be better to divide that poor child in twain, and leave one-half at the feet of each parent, than let it live from the period it has now reached. Look at that case, and say whether you may break into the sanctuary of a man's heart, rifle the treasures of his home, betray the friend who was confided in you, outrage his hospitality, bring shame upon him, leave him almost hopeless, a wanderer in the world. Now, what says Blackstone on this subject: "Though it may be cowardice in time of war, between two independent nations, to flee from an enemy, yet, between fellow subjects, the law countenances no such point of honor." Way, the scenes with which Blackstone always explains a principle of the common law, and with which, in this case, he appropriates to the Sickles that which they never had, this very trial by jury, which all who investigated the subject know belongs to the Continent, is developed in stating the reason why a man cannot protect his own honor. He says, "the King and his Courts are the vindex injuriorum, and will give to the party wronged all the satisfaction he deserves." This is Blackstone. Is it the duello? Now, is it not more consistent with the analogies of the law, more consistent with the marital relations, its duties, rights and responsibilities; more consistent with the structure of our Government and the character of our people, with our habits, usages, thoughts, feelings, sentiments, principles, to adopt the relations for which my brother Stanton contended with so much power? Is there anything in the law of the land inconsistent with his great conclusion—a conclusion which all of us arrive at—that this circumstance of consent, employed to distinguish the case of a ravisher from that of an adulterer, can make no difference in regard to its consequences, unless it can be said that the consent of the wife to the pollution of her person is not obtained by a fraud on the established relations of husband and wife. By fraud in law, then. I do not know on what view of duty of society, or of legal principle any such aspect of the case is, or can be presented.

District-Attorney—Then what is the difference between adultery and rape?

[The conclusion of Mr. Brady's argument had not reached us at the time of going to press without First Edition.]

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

SEVENTY-THIRD ANNIVERSARY OF THE ST. GEORGE'S SOCIETY.—The St. George's Society celebrated its seventy-third anniversary yesterday. In the morning services were celebrated at St. Thomas' Church, corner of Broadway and Houston-street. The Right Rev. Bishop Southgate delivered a discourse on the text, "Blessed are the peace-makers." Having made an allusion to the last anniversary, when news of the victory at Lucknow was received, he proceeded to show that England had reached that point in national development where she could take the position of a peace-maker. In his opinion she was deriving the benediction contained in the text from the course she has taken in the difficulties now pending in Europe. The Rev. Drs. Van Kleek, Morris, Morgan and others took part in the exercises. The anthems and choruses were rendered by the Harmonic Society under the direction of Geo. F. Bristow. In the evening the usual dinner was partaken of at the Astor House. Roast beef and mutton from England, St. George and the Dragon done in sugar, and the national flags appropriately draped around the room reminded the guests of the day they celebrated. Dr. J. C. Beales, President of the Society, occupied the chair. Mayor Tieman, the representatives of the St. Nicholas, St. Andrew's, and St. Patrick's Societies, together with W. M. Evarts, Esq., of the New-England Society, the Right Rev. Bishop Southgate, and others, occupied seats on the platform. Dr. Beales set forth the prosperous condition of the Society in a brief speech. Mayor Tiemann responded to the "City Authorities." Mr. Bottsford, of New-Brunswick, and Mr. Armour, of Toronto, to "The Colonies." Major Cady to the "Army and Navy of the United States." In reply to the sentiment "Our Sister Societies," the different representatives spoke. W. M. Evarts, Esq., concluded his speech with the sentiment "The Sovereign of England; a great monarch of a great people. Her virtues as a woman have recovered the homage over the hearts of our people which is denied to her crown." On behalf of the Press Mr. de Cordova made an exceedingly felicitous address, which called forth hearty applause. It was a late hour when the company broke up.

THE ODD FELLOWS' CELEBRATION.—There were yesterday reported at the various hotels in the City, about five thousand persons who have come to take part in celebrating the Fortieth Anniversary of the founding of Odd Fellowship in this country. Of these there came in bodies about 300 from the District of Columbia, 200 from Ohio, and 300 from Baltimore. The latter have with them Blues' Band, under the charge of Major B. Warner. It is estimated that there are some 800 from Northern New-York.

REMOVAL OF QUARANTINE.—There was a special meeting of the Commissioners of Emigration yesterday morning, called at the request of Ex-Governor Patterson, of the Quarantine Removal Commission, for the purpose of conference. Of the Commissioners of Emigration, President Verplanck and Commissioners Carrigan, Purdy, Curtis, Cummings, Jellinghaus, Hunt and Low were present; and of the Commissioners for the Removal of Quarantine, Ex-Governor Seymour and John C. Green, Esq. Mr. Patterson was not present, having been called from the City suddenly, in consequence of the severe illness of his son. After some conversation on the subject of the removal, the Commissioners of Emigration resolved to cooperate with the Commissioners for the Removal of Quarantine, and tendered them the use of their office for the transaction of business.

A BAD PHILOPŒNA.—On Friday last Mrs. Philippina Schreder eloped from her residence, No. 85 Chrystie-street, with a German named Chas. Beton, taking with her three children, aged respectively eleven, six and three years, and $300 of her husband's cash. She is represented as 34 years of age, stout built, full face, sulky expression, and dark hair. Her paramour is 26 years of age, and of less than the average size. On Friday night an attempt was made to set fire to her husband's residence, by igniting a quantity of combustibles that had been piled up against the front door. Mr. Schreder, with his only remaining child, a daughter aged 15, who refused to accompany her mother, was asleep in the house at the time, but the fire was extinguished without much damage. Mr. Schreder expresses himself perfectly willing that his wife should leave him—in fact, he regards it as a good riddance—but he objects to her having the custody of his children, and does not like the idea of being burnt up to gratify her malice. He therefore lodged his grievance with the Police, who are on the lookout for the absconding Philippina and her paramour.

CONTEST AT TRINITY CHURCH.—The Easter holidays are to be celebrated, it would appear, at Trinity Church by a battle royal among the authorities of that venerable corporation. The annual election of vestrymen takes place to-day, and it is understood that a contest of unusual interest will be excited by an effort to throw out a number of the present members, and introduce a revolution in the management of the church property.

STEAM FIRE-ENGINES.—Another steam fire-engine has just been completed by Messrs. Lee & Larned, at the Novelty Works, which is intended for Manhattan Company, No. 8, of this City. It is said to combine all the essential improvements introduced into the engines J. G. Storm and J. C. Carey. It is much smaller, however, and will be drawn by the firemen.

A FILIBUSTERING EDITOR KILLED.—The Texas papers gives an account of an affray which occurred in the town of Bonham, on the 30th March, between one Matthew Saddler and Mr. John Milton Crane, editor of the Bonham Independent. In the quarrel, Mr. Crane was shot and expired instantly. His career was checkered. The New Orleans Picayune says: "Crane was a native of Frankfort, Ky. Before he was 21 years of age, having heard of the revolutionary struggle in Texas, he ran away from home to join the Texans, and arrived at Galveston just after the battle at San Jacinto. He was accidentally, poisoned, found sick by a friend of the family, and taken home. He had in the meantime, lost his father and mother. On his own accord he entered a printing office and worked hard—learning his trade by day, and studying by night by the feeble light of bits of candle that he picked up about the office. When the Nicaraguan expedition to Cuba was organized, Crane was one of its most active friends, and canvassed several of the Southern States to raise means for it. After the failure of the expedition, he returned to the printing business, and established a paper called the Democrat, at Boonville, Mo. In a couple of years, he sold out; removed to Tennessee; started another paper; again sold out; removed to Texas; started a paper at Gilliad; again sold out; purchased the hotel at Indianola; married a niece of the Hon. Mr. Orr, of South Carolina; got tired of hotel-keeping; removed to Bonham; started the Independent, and was doing well, when his career was sadly and bloodily ended."

CONFESSION OF A MURDERER.—The murder of the Brantford (Canada) mail-carrier, recently reported, has been confessed by one Joseph A. Armstrong, now in prison at Toronto. Armstrong says he concerted the murder with two others, John Moore and Robert Over. He describes the plot as follows: "Over asked me if I was a man; I answered that I was; he again asked me if I could be depended upon; I told him I could; he then related to me what he was going to do; he said the mail came along there every night about 10 or 11 o'clock, in the case of one man, and it was the best strike we could make; I asked him how he was going to do it; he said, we will make the mail man get out of the wagon, or I will make him umore out; I said how will you make him tumble? he said, it is easy; this old thing [pointing to the gun] never lies; and I said, good God, don't shoot the man; he said it was the best plan, for dead men tell no tales; Moore then said, we can spare the man's life, for there are three of us, and we must be poor men if we cannot make him give up the bags without killing him."

FRATRICIDE.—The Louisville Journal tells the following horrible story:

"A shocking affair occurred in Washington County, Miss., a few days ago. Two brothers, named William and Robert Buford, were living together. William had a very pretty wife, with whom the younger brother, Robert, became madly infatuated. A criminal intercourse between the two had been carried on for some time, but growing weary of the restraint imposed by the presence of the injured husband, the younger brother determined to add to his other crime that of fratricide. On Wednesday evening of last week the outraged husband and brother was murdered, and on the Sunday following Robert Buford, the double-murderer, committed suicide by taking strychnine. The misguided wife of the murdered man, with two children, are left the sole memorial of this chapter of horrors."

THE YACHT WANDERER ON HER TRAVELS AGAIN.—The Savannah Republican, of the 21st April, says: "This famous vessel, whose name has spread as far and wide as that of the old Constitution, having been thoroughly cleansed, fumigated and painted, set sail yesterday upon a bona fide pleasure excursion, and in search of a market. The party on board consists of Mr. Lamar, her owner, and a few friends, and they proceed directly to Havana, where she will be offered for sale. If it should be found impracticable to obtain the figure at which she is held at that port, she will tack about and set sail for New-York."

A NEW SECT IN EUROPE.—A Paris correspondent writes: "A curious new sect of Christians, called Transmigrationists, have of late become very numerous in France. Quite different from the Mormons, their character is highly moral, and their creed Christian, only they include all animals in their idea of universal morality. They profess to believe that being changed after death into some animal will be their purgatory. In Germany their increase is immense."

Professor Charles Wilson, of Rochester, a well-known music-teacher, died suddenly on Friday, April 22.

RICORD'S PRACTICE.

Dr. C. D. HAMMOND, PUPIL of Ricord, of Paris, the chief Special Surgeon living, and of Professors CARMICHAEL and MOTT, of New-York, is consulted privately at No. 61 Bleecker-st, a few doors east of Broadway. All complicated diseases of a certain class effectually treated, including Weaknesses, &c., &c. Office hours from 9 to 8, and from 6 to 9 in the evening. The principal languages spoken. Terms moderate.

HUNDREDS OF THE UNFORTUNATE Are disappointed of a cure by not calling on DR. HUNTER at first, the Hunterian Dispensar, No. 5 Division-st., New-York City. Established in 1834, for the Preservation of Human Life. PRIVATE CONSULTATION.—Dr. HUNTER has for thirty years confined his attention to diseases of a certain class, in which he has treated not less than fifty thousand cases, without an instance of failure. His great remedy, HUNTER'S RED DROP, cures certain diseases when regular treatment and all other remedies fail; cures without dieting or restriction in the habits of the patient; cures without the nauseating and distressing effects of all other remedies; cures in new cases in less than six hours; it roots out the poisonous taint the blood is sure to absorb unless this remedy is used. It is $1 a vial, and cannot be obtained genuine anywhere but at the old office, No. 5 Division-st. Look for nothing, that treats of the evil effects of early abuse and indulgence, is embellished with elaborate colored engravings, portraying every feature and phase of disease, exposes the fallacy of the ordinary modes adopted for the cure of local as well as hereditary maladies, and gives the only safe and infallible remedy for expunging every trace of the virus from the system.

DR. WATSON HAS, FOR A LONG SERIES of years, confined his attention to diseases of a certain class, in which he has treated a vast number of cases with a success which has won for him the confidence of the public. The remedies are mild, and there is no interruption to business. Dr. WATSON receives patients in private consulting rooms from 8 A. M. to 8 P. M., at 659 Broomeet., second block west of Broadway.

Dr. WATSON'S Work, THE CAUSE AND CURE, issued simultaneously in London and New York, is the only one which clearly explains the nature and mode of treatment of the VENEREAL DISEASE in all its different forms; it treats also in full of SPERMATORRHŒA, the result of early indiscretion, excess, or other causes. Anatomical plates of a superior kind, and drawings of every form of disease from life, postpaid. "Dr. WATSON'S work has been written by a person of great practical knowledge, and we cordially recommend it."—Medical Journal. Sold by the Author, as above; also by C. A. MILLER, No. 498 Broadway, New-York.

HIGHLY IMPORTANT TO BOTH SEXES MARRIED AND SINGLE, IN HEALTH OR DISEASE.—DR. LARMONT'S PARIS, LONDON AND NEW-YORK MEDICAL ADVISER AND MARRIAGE GUIDE. 36th edition. Among its contents is the MARRIAGE of the sexual organs of the male and female, all their diseases and weaknesses; latest discoveries in reproduction; European Hospital practice; quacks, (advertisers, their recipes and specifics; the author's unequalled Paris and London treatment. At No. 847 Broadway, up stairs, three blocks above St. Nicholas Hotel, New-York, from 9 A. M. to 1 and 5 to 8 evenings.

"We concur with other papers in recommending Dr. Larmont and his work."—Courrier des Etats Unis, Gerau Die Reform, Sunday Dispatch, Staats Zeitung, New-Yorker Democrat, Day Book, Essex Standard, Rahway Advocate, Empire City, Police Gazette, New-York Pick Me-Up, Brunswick Times, Mercury, Atlas, &c.]

DR. MAGNIN'S LUCINA CORDIAL OR ELIXIR OF LOVE.—This delightful and positive restorant of the human system is fast superseding all other remedies; in fact, when its virtues become fully known, it will be the only remedy in use. Its action on the nervous system and reproductive organs is most extraordinary. During the season of over-excitement, it will give to the nervous organisation that degree of tension which is requisite to give the human system the enjoyment of its full powers, both mentally and physically. As an appetiser it is equally remarkable; assimilated with the gastric juices of the stomach, it assists them in more readily dissolving all nutritious substances, and converting them into pure and wholesome blood; as the infusion of this is improved, and the whole framework of man moves on in a more vigorous and harmonious manner, thereby. Price $3 per bottle, or two bottles for $5. Principal office, No. 203 Fulton-st., New-York. DR. MAGNIN.

EDWARD H. DIXON, M. D., EDITOR OF the Scalpel, author of "Woman and Her Diseases," and "A Practical Treatise on Diseases of the Sexual System," devotes his entire attention to Operative Surgery and consultations on the more obscure diseases of the Pelvic Viscera. Rupture, Piles, Fistula, Prolapsus and Stricture of the Rectum are cured without the knife or instrument, and by a process nearly painless, and requiring no case can be named. Every case of Stricture curable or otherwise, as the necessary indications are always apparent on personal examination. Dr. D. refers to D. C. McCallum, late Actuary of the Erie Railroad; Henry Ford, Brooklyn; John P. Hays, of this City; John Linn, Esq., Newton, N. J.; Maurice Barnett, New-York; Livingston, (Livingston & Kinkead & Co.,) N. C. Bradford, late Cashier Bowery Bank, and many gentlemen in various parts of the Union. Office hours from 8 to 9, 1 to 3, and 7 to 9 evenings, at No. 42 5th-av.

INDIA RUBBER GOODS.

CAUTION TO DEALERS IN ELASTIC FABRICS CONTAINING THREADS OR SHEETS OF VULCANIZED RUBBER.—The undersigned gives notice that he holds an absolute conveyance from Charles Goodyear of the exclusive right to use vulcanized rubber as covered according to said Goodyear's patent of June 15 1844, in all elastic fabrics the elasticity of which is due to the shirring or corrugating the sheets or threads of such fabrics, and in all woven, braided, cemented or sewed fabrics, or such as are or can be covered or protected on one or both sides with substances other than rubber, and in all smooth, elastic shirred goods; and also to make and sell India-rubber threads of vulcanized rubber, and all threads or sheets of rubber which are or can be made or finished by union with or to be covered by fibrous substances. And he hereby gives notice that he is ready to supply the trade with all such fabrics at reasonable rates and has a full stock now in store.

His attention has been called to an advertisement signed by William Judson, in which said Judson claims to be the owner of the right to import and sell such goods. The undersigned is satisfied that this pretence on the part of said Judson is a fraud upon the public, and is made for the purpose of injuring his business. Said Judson has never exhibited his pretended titles to any Court, or to the public, and he does not afford the undersigned any opportunity of commencing any suit against him in order to test the titles. Charles Goodyear could not give any valid titles to said Judson, or to any one else, for the titles he had conveyed to the undersigned. The question decided by Judge Ingersoll, in New-York, upon a preliminary motion and partial presentation of the case, was not decisive of the merits of the title of the undersigned, and the card published by said Judson news that the Court was imposed upon by a pretended title in a third party, which said Judson now claims to have been in himself for the last six years.]

The undersigned therefore cautions all dealers in articles of the above descriptions, containing vulcanized rubber, that no such goods can be lawfully sold in this country without his license and stamp, and that he shall prosecute, to the extent of the law, all persons infringing upon his said rights. Orders solicited, and rights to use guaranteed, by HORACE H. DAY, No. 23 Cortlandt-st., New-York.

NEWS BY THE ST. LOUIS.

at Carthegena, after leaving Aspinwall on the 10th of April.

No matters of interest have transpired in Panama the past fifteen days. A dinner was given to Monsieur DOAZAN, on his retiring from the French Consulship to take that of Vera Cruz, but then it is well-known that a dinner can be got up at Panama on the slightest provocation.

An extra session of the Legislature of the State of Panama, will meet on the 25 h, to devise ways to raise money to keep the wheels of Government in motion.

The prompt settlement of the questions with Paraguay has disappointed the Anti-American sentiment on the Isthmus, which hoped for a disgraceful, if only temporary defeat, of American pretensions in that region.

RAN RUNNELS, Esq., for ten years past a resident of Panama, appointed U. S. Consul to San Juan del Sur, in place of JOHN PRIEST, removed, came passenger on the St. Louis, and went forward yesterday on the Columbus. He had despatches for Gen. LAMAR, supposed to have reference to the seizure of the White boats in the San Juan rivers.

EDWARD CONNER, Esq., lately appointed U. S Consul to Mazatlan, went out yesterday, on the John L. Stephens. The John L. Stephens has the respectable number of 1,584 passengers, and left with them early this morning.

The Golden Age arrived at Panama quite unexpectedly, last evening, with 830 passengers, having made the run, touching at Manzanillo and Acapulco, in 11 days and five hours. She made as high as 317 knots in 24 hours.

The opposition steamer Uncle Sam left San Francisco, full of passengers, the same day as the Age, but is not due for two days yet. The Northern Light's passengers are expected on Monday at Aspinwall. The Railroad has done a smart business this fortnight, having carried, including those by the Northern Light not less than 4,000 persons at $25 each, besides having taken, probably, $30,000 more for British passengers, mails, gold, freight, &c.

The flag-ship Merrimack, the Saranac and St. Mary's of the Pacific Squadron are at Panama. It was intended that the latter vessel should go to Realejo, but a matter involving naval discipline will probably detain her some considerable time yet at Panama. The Vandalia is daily expected at Panama from Realejo. The Cyane is at Realejo.

The flag-ship of the Home Squadron, the Roanoke, the Jamestown and the supply-ship Relief are at Aspinwall.

The British mail steamer from San Juan del Norte is not due at Aspinwall for a day or two yet, so that I can send you nothing from that point. F. W. R.

CENTRAL AMERICA.

Attempted Insurrection in Salvador—The Nicaraguan Treaties—Defeat of the Belly Contract Confirmed.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PANAMA, Sunday, April 17, 1859.

The Panama Railroad Company's steamship Columbus, Capt. LUDWIG, arrived in this Bay from Central American ports on the 6th inst. Her cargo consists of 1,075 seroons indigo, 245 seroons cochineal, 1,591 bags Costa Rica coffee, 85 sacks rice, 4,400 hides, 35 bales deer skins, 171 sacks sugar, 34 cases balsam.

The Columbus brings dates from Guatemala to March 27, Salvador to the 30th; Realejo, Nicaragua, to April 1; and Punta Arenas de Costa Rica to April 3. The news is of but little importance; the confirmation of the news of the ratification of the Cass-Yrissari Treaty being the principal item.

SALVADOR.

On the 4th of March an attempt at insurrection of the soldiers and musicians in the cuartel of San Salvador, with the intention to assassinate the Commandante BRACAMONTE, was made, but was defeated by the Commandante and the soldiers who remained faithful to him. The insurrectionists freed some fifty prisoners in the cuartel, who they expected to join them. Two or three of the rebels were killed and several badly wounded. The next day four of the conspirators were shot.

The political programme of Gen. BARRIOS in Salvador has been successful, and resulted as I told you it would some weeks since. BARRIOS first got up charges against President SANTIN, who resigned his office in disgust to JOAQUIN E. GUZMAN, Vice-President, and father-in-law of BARRIOS. GUZMAN, in turn, delivers the office of President over to BARRIOS, who assumed it on the 11th March, by virtue of his position as oldest Senator. Now this matter is fixed, it is probable internal peace will reign for a while.

NICARAGUA.

J. ROSA PEREZ arrived in the Columbus with a copy of the CASS-YRISSARI treaty, a copy of which I wrote you was brought by way of San Juan del Norte on the 2d inst., and went to New-York by the Star of the West. The treaty with Sir. WM. GORE OUSELEY has also been confirmed, as I wrote you it had a month or more since. Sardinia has also made a treaty with Nicaragua, the terms of which are said to be similar to the British one. The postal treaty, which I wrote you six weeks since had been concluded between Great Britain and Nicaragua, to last one year, provides that the postage on letters between the two countries shall be sixpence, and inland Nicaragua postage on British letters two cents.

An amnesty has been granted to all political offenders, including Padre VIJIL, WALKER's Minister to Washington. The Padre was lately officiating as priest to a small community in New-Granada, near Carthagena, but is now in Nicaragua. A better feeling is growing up towards foreigners on the part of the Government; immigration is invited, in order that the resources of the country may be developed.

Mention is made of the alarm caused by the late visit of the Decatur at San Juan del Sur, of which I wrote you in my last.

The Minister of Finance reports a deficiency of $70,000 for expenses of the fiscal year of 1859-'60.

I sent you by previous steamer a copy of the decree declaring the transit free to all.

This mail also confirms the news sent you that the Belly contract had been defeated in the Senate, on account of the large tracts of land granted. BELLY has lost two of his men from fever. Several of the others are discontented, and a general break-up is soon looked for. Since the French Government has discarded BELLY's canal scheme, and BARING Brothers have declared it must prove a failure, BELLY's followers do not seem so sanguine as they were.

COSTA RICA.

The coffee crop is nearly double the crop of last year. It will amount to 140,000 quintals of excellent quality. A great portion of it has already been taken away by the European traders.

The sickness at Punta Arenas had entirely disappeared.

Sir WILLIAM GORE OUSELEY was at San José, giving dinners to the officials and negotiating quietly with the Government. O'GORMAN MAHON, the gassy Irishman, and Prince POLIGNAC, one of BELLY's followers, were also at San José. President MORA talks of going to Rivas to help M. BELLY inaugurate his canal scheme—but I predict he will see through the cheat before the time for "laying the corner stone" arrives.

The election for President will take place in Costa Rica on the 7th May. President MORA will, undoubtedly, be elected, as he deserves to be. F. W. R.

The Isthmus of Panama.

RAN RUNNELS NOT NAMED CONSUL TO SAN JUAN—MARITIME MOVEMENTS.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ASPINWALL, Sunday, April 17, 1859.

It is not true, as stated in the Herald, that RAN RUNNELS, appointed Consul at San Juan del Sur, brought out important dispatches for the Commander-in-Chief of our Home Squadron respecting Central American affairs. I was present when RUNNELS told Flag Officer MCCLUNEY that he only had dispatches for Gen. LAMAR. I presume RUNNELS will go up the coast in one of our war vessels to Realejo, and his post.

Since my last letter, the Jamestown, Commander KENNEDY, has arrived from San Juan del Norte for the purpose of getting provisions and stores, and water. Upon her arrival the Roanoke got under way and went up to Porto Bello for water. She was absent only three days, and upon her return the Jamestown repaired thither, and returned here after being absent about the same period. The water at Porto Bello is pure and sweet, from the mountain-top, and runs about 1,000 gallons per hour, and the largest vessels can lay within 50 feet of the shore.

I learn that our Government are sending to this place a large supply of coal and provisions, but for what object has not yet transpired. Something is "brewing."

It is understood here that the Flag-ship Roanoke will leave here for San Juan del Norte, immediately after the arrival of the Northern Light, which was to have left New-York on the 11th instant. She will be due on Wednesday next. The Roanoke will only be absent a few days. During her absence the Jamestown will remain here for our protection.

Fleet-Surgeon CHASE and Third Assistant-Engineer BAILEY, have reported for duty on board the Flag-ship.

DOMINICK SMITH, musician, on board the Roanoke, died on the 14th inst., and was buried on shore at Monkey Hill Cemetery. The Roanoke and Jamestown are very healthy; and both vessels in splendid condition for effective service.

Flag-Officer MCCLUNEY and Captain GARDNER inspected the Jamestown yesterday.

Yours, very truly.

A terrible catastrophe occurred in San Francisco Bay on the 3d of April. The steamer Contra Costa burst her boilers while crossing the bar. Many persons were injured, and four killed. The names of those killed are as follows: DAVID WINSLOW CADY formerly Deputy County Surveyor. He was from Albany, N. Y. MITCHELL G. SMITH, barkeeper of the Contra Costa. H. S. OSTRANDER and GEO. MCDOWELL, firemen on the boat.

Mr. J. W. SIMONTON assumed the editorial charge of, the San Francisco Evening Bulletin on the 31st of March. In his salutatory address to his readers, Mr. SIMONTON says: "In the future, as in the past, the Bulletin will utterly repudiate the influence or control of all parties and cliques, seeking to make itself a necessity to intelligent readers, of all classes, while it is the exclusive representative of none. In a word, it will seek to be the organ of the People, in the fullest sense. In Federal politics, it will maintain a position of 'armed neutrality,' criticising, approving and condemning measures rather than men, with independent discrimination. In regard to municipal affairs, every energy will be exhausted in efforts to sustain and advance the Reform movement, which, long since, disenthralled the city from the toils of politicians by trade, and has shaped its course towards a haven of renewed prosperity."

Capt. PENDLETON, of the American bark Sarah Park, from Cardiff, Wales, had been arrested in San Francisco for brutal treatment of two of his sailors. The Bulletin says: "It appears, as near as we can learn the circumstances, that about twenty days ago, while the vessel was at sea, two seamen named JOHN THOMPSON and WILLIAM JOHNSON, being nearly starved, committed a petty theft of some biscuits. Being detected, they were ordered by the captain to be flogged and ironed. The flogging was of the most brutal description possible to conceive; for the naked backs and sides of the men were not only completely cut up with lashes, but salt brine was thrown upon the wounds and allowed to dry on; and this operation was repeated a number of times. To add to the horror, the men were ironed to the floor of the hold, and barely sufficient food given them to support the almost extinct spark of life.

The brig Ellen H. Wood, from San Francisco for Mendocino, was wrecked on the 27th March. Four lives were lost.

Later from Japan.

NAMES OF THE JAPANESE ENVOYS TO THE UNITED STATES—PREVALENCE OF CHOLERA—EUROPEANS IN JAPAN.

By the Robert Passenger, at San Francisco, from Hong Kong, we have dates from Nagasaki (Japan) to 31st December. The Japanese of that port now have permission to sell bullocks to foreigners, and they do so at three Mexican dollars a head. The Governor has also imported a large number of sheep for breeding from Shanghae, with a view to providing foreigners and shipping with supplies.

The Japanese Commissioners appointed to proceed to Washington to exchange the ratification of the American treaty are NAGAAI GENBA NO KAMI, Governor of Accounts and Minister of the Navy, and TWA SAY HIGO NO KAMI, Imperial Inspector. The former is said to be a learned and intelligent man, instructed by some officers of the Dutch Navy at Desima in algebra, mathematics and navigation. In 1857 he conducted the steamer Soembing, the first ever possessed by the Japanese, from Nagasaki to Yeddo, with Japanese engineers and sailors, and without any European aid. He was one of the Commissioners engaged in negotiating the last treaties. TWA SAY HIGO NO KAMI, also an intelligent man, was one of the Commissioners employed in the recent treaty negotiations, and acquired some knowledge of foreign politics and customs in his intercourse with foreigners on those occasions.

The late Governor of Nagasaki, ARAWA IWAMINE KAMI is gone to Yeddo. OLABE SURUZA NO KAMI had succeeded him.

The Russian Consulate will be removed to Kanagowa in the course of this year.

The Russian steam-frigate Askeld is undergoing repairs at Nagasaki.

Cholera has been raging in the northern part of Japan to a frightful extent. At Yeddo, alone the deaths are reported at 150,000 in one month. Allisima and Odowara have also suffered greatly. The outbreak of this dreadful scourge, so soon after the time the foreign embassies were settled at Yeddo, has led the people to attribute to them its introduction into their country, and superstition points to the coincidence as a punishment for opening Japan to foreigners. By the latest accounts the disease was less virulent.

The Danish brig Vilhelmine, from Shanghae, arrived on the 18th December, and left again on the 21st, not having been permitted to trade in consequence of there being no treaty between Denmark and Japan. Vessels of the nations which have treaties are admitted under the Dutch treaty of 30th January, 1856, and additional articles of 16th October, 1857, until their treaties come into effect.

Another steamer, the Nagasaki, built in Holland for the Prince of FIZEN, arrived on the 15th of November.

It appears that there are some European ladies residing in Japan. The Russian Consul-General and his Secretary, with their wives, are dwelling at Hakodadi and at Iomya, on the side of the bay opposite to Desima at Nagasaki. The merchant commanders who took the two steamers Yeddo and Nagasaki from Holland to Japan, are residing with their wives. At this place, also, some of the officers and crew of the Askeld are lodged; the remainder live in a temple in the town.

LAW REPORTS.

COURT CALENDAR—TUESDAY, APRIL 26.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.—Nos. 39, 40, 41, 8, 9, 30, 1, 17 to 26, inclusive.

SUPREME COURT—CIRCUIT—Part I.—Over and Terminer. Part II.—Nos. 1054, 1274, 1256, 840, 1542, 1546, 1548, 1554, 1556, 1558, 1566, 1568, 1570, 1574, 1576, 1578, 1580, 1582, 1584, 1586. Part III.—Adjourned for the term.

SUPERIOR COURT—TRIAL TERM.—Nos. 148, 233, 129, 90, 301, 320, 322, 165, 942, 785, 4, 341, 343, 346, 350, 351, 352, 354, 355, 357, 359, 360, 361, 362, 363, 367.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT—APRIL 25.

Judge NELSON having arrived in town took his seat this morning. A patent case about machinery for carpet manufacture was expected to be tried, but, on request of counsel, was postponed till to-morrow. No other cause was ready on the calendar, and the Court adjourned till to-morrow.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT—APRIL 25.

Before Judge Betts and a Jury.

The United States vs. Two Hundred Quarter Boxes of Cigars, &c.—This was an action brought to forfeit for undervaluation about 189,000 cigars, shipped from Cuba in the bark Lyra, by Don Julian Alvarez, in March, 1858. They were invoiced at about $2,900. The local appraisers, at the Custom house, had anced their value to about $3,450, and on a reappraisement they were valued at $3,318.

The claimant however gave evidence of parties in Cuba that the value in Cuba was, if anything, less than the invoice, the brand being an old one, and not of first quality.

The jury, after a short absence, found a verdict in favor of the claimants, restoring the goods.

For the United States, Mr. Hunt; for claimants, Mr. Griswold.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS—APRIL 25.

Before Justice Roosevelt.

The People ex rel. O'Gorman vs. The Board of Police Commissioners.—Applications in this and about twenty other cases of members of the old Police force, were made to day, for writs of peremptory mandamus compelling the Board of Police Commissioners to pay the relators their salaries as members of the Police force from July 26, 1857, up to the present time. Mr. Sherwood appeared for the applicants, and Messrs. Field, Noyes and Vanderpoel for the Board. The counsel for the Board expressed themselves willing to consent to an order for an alternative mandamus, but strenuously opposed the granting of a peremptory writ.

The Judge took the papers and reserved his decision.

Quite a crowd of members of the old and new force were present to watch the proceedings.

Before Justice Wright.

STAY OF EXECUTION IN MRS. HARTUNG'S CASE GRANTED.

It will be recollected that on Saturday an application was made to Justice WRIGHT, while temporarily in this City, at Blancard's Hotel, for a stay of execution in Mrs. Hartung's case, pending proceedings on a writ of error in her behalf. The Justice to-day granted the stay asked for. The writ of error will be argued, it is expected, at the May term.

W. J. Hadley for the prisoner; Samuel G. Courtney, District Attorney of Albany County, for the prosecution.

ARREST OF FRAUDULENT DEBTORS.

Forster & Hengstenberg vs. J. Uhlfelder & Brother.—Motion to discharge from arrest. About the middle of February last the defendants bought goods from the plaintiffs to the value of $538, on the representation of the defendant, Jacob Uhlfelder, that his firm was perfectly good and able to pay for all the goods they should buy. On the 28th of February the defendants made a general assignment, giving large preferences to one Solomon L. Gerrits, their assignee, who is the father-in-law of Jacob Uhlfelder, to one Herman Uhlfelder, and to one Adolph Heischman. On the 14th of March, the plaintiffs by their attorney, T. C. Callicot, commenced a suit against the defendants, and on affidavits of the above facts obtained an order from Judge Clerke directing the Sheriff to arrest the defendants and hold them to bail in the sum of $700, under section 179 of the Code of Procedure.

The defendants are arrested; and their counsel now moved that the order of arrest be vacated. Judge ROOSEVELT said that on the papers before him the inference of fraud was irresistible; the defendant must have known that they were insolvent when the purchases were made; and although it appeared that the defendant, Henry Uhlfelder, did not personally participate in making the false and fraudulent representation complained of, he shared in the enjoyment of the proceeds of the fraud, and is liable to the same extent as his partner. Motion denied as to both defendants with costs.

John H. McCann for the motion; F. C. Callicot opposed.

DECISIONS.

J. L. Wolcott vs. F. J. Winston and others.—The answer must be stricken out, and judgment for plaintiff, unless it be duly verified, or another in its stead in ten days from service of this order.

In re J. A. Stewart, Receiver, &c.—Motion for attachment denied without costs or prejudice, and with liberty to renew.

John Jay, Receiver, &c., vs. W. H. De Groot, &c.—Motion to stay proceedings denied without costs.

Geo. Clark vs H. L. Bulkley and others.—Motion to discharge purchaser and return the ten per cent. and reasonable charges, granted.

In re Estate of R. C. Rathbone.—Order of reference to Charles Stuart, Esq.

In re Robt. J. Thomas, &c.—Certiorari denied.

Bridgewater Paint Co., vs. Dan'l Messmore.—Execution against body set aside, on defendant stipulating not to bring an action.

Alphonse Anthoni vs. Henry Rogers.—Discharge of debtor refused.

G. H. Mackey vs. John Laidlaw et al.—Motion for examination of defendants denied.

In re Petition of J. M. Quackenbos.—Order appointing trustees, &c. granted.

Before Justice Pierrepont.

Wm. J. Forbes vs. Robert J. Walker. Same vs. Edward Logan, Receiver.—Judgment to be amended as per stipulation, costs of appeal to be paid out of the fund in Receiver's hands. Motion for leave to appeal to Court without security denied.

A Canadian magistrate, Mr. Elisha S. Gauson, of Aylmer, is under arrest for committing a murderous assault upon a man named Frost, whose offence was, that he took possession of a piece of land, the proprietorship of which was disputed between Mr. Gausan and another party. Frost received a mortal wound on the head with an ax. Gausan is an American by birth, but went to Canada in 1832, and recently became a magistrate. He is President of the Port Bruce Harbor Company.

New and important discovery for the cure of deafness, disagreeable discharges from the ear and noises in the head. Dr. HARTLEY intended to continue advertising the most remarkable cures effected by his mode of treatment, but the unwillingness of patients to have their cases made public is the only reason why he omits to publish as heretofore their names and residences. Indeed, it is objected to by many of his friends, that he should advertise at all, as such publications are strongly suggestive of charlatanism, but others who come from a distance and would never have known of the extraordinary success of his new and improved method of treating deafness, discharges from the ear and noises in the head except they had seen his advertisement, insist with much force (after permanent cures) that it is a duty he owes the public, to keep his name and office bfore the world—it is a large pecuniary sacrifice to advertise, nor can he, with his present rate of charges, afford it too liberally.

Discharges from the ear and partial deafness, caused by scarlet fever, inflammation or injuries to the head promptly, carefully and scientifically treated without causing the slightest pain or inconvenience, and a cure in all cases guaranteed.

Office and residence No. 40 St. Mark's-place, New-York. Hours of attendance from 9 A. M. to 2 P. M.

CALAMITY SHOULD NOT BE COURTED—Calamity should never be provoked by negligence. Nobody will go out of doors on a rainy day without an umbrella. Why will anybody go upon the water unprepared for salvation from death by drowning? At a little more cost than that involved in the purchase of an umbrella, a sure preventive of drowning can be procured from the Delano Life Preserving Coat and Vest Company, No 256 Broadway. It can be had in the shape of an elegant garment for either man, woman or child.

MONDAY, April 25—P. M.

The Weekly Averages of the Banks of the City of New-York, on Saturday, April 23, 1859, present in the aggregate the following changes from the previous exhibit of April 16:

Decrease in Loans	$776,117
Increase in Specie	593,048
Decrease in Circulation	4,347
Increase in Undrawn Deposits	868 017

Including the Clearing-House operations of the week, which show the interexchanges between the Banks, and including also the Sub-Treasury statement of Saturday, the following is the general comparison with the previous exhibit, and also with the movement this time last season:

COMPARATIVE RECAPITULATION.

	April 24, 1858.	April 23, 1859.	April 16, 1859
Capital	$66,709,000	$68,324,057	$68,048 388
Loans	111,303,476	129,192,507	129,968,624
Specie	34,113,891	26 068,155	25,478,107
Circulation	7,140,651	8,289,112	8 293,459
Gross Deposits	95,340,344	112 627,267	111,695 711
Exchanged	16,141,451	23,671,453	23 607,914
Undrawn	79,198,893	88,955,814	88,087,797
In Sub-Treasury	3,685,071	6,994,810	7,079,621

The Bank Averages differ in several points from the general calculation of the week's movement. The curtailment in Loans is larger, and the position of the Specie line, (though a falling one for the new week,) is decidedly stronger. This is owing to the receipts by express and coastwise. We find that nearly one-third the heavy export of the week was made up of Mexican Silver and Foreign Gold Coin—a good part of the latter received from Canada. The Southern and South Western bank balances are running up again, and the general Deposit line, after the remittances to Europe, is $868,000 higher. The Statement altogether denotes an ease in the market for Money not likely to be immediately disturbed by the full rates of Exchange on London or the varying complexion of the Foreign news. The Bankers are lending their Bills for Wednesday's steamer at 110¾@110¾. The business thus far is moderate, and so are the Bullion engagements. The last-named will be more than covered this week by the California arrival, if the packet of April 5 is not unusually delayed.

The Bear account at the Stock Exchange was even more decidedly in the ascendant, in point of prices, through the forenoon, than at the close of last week. The feeling partially changed at and after the Second Board on the Bank Statement and the news of the City of Washington, and prices left off firmer. The fluctuations from Saturday were:

New York Central	72⅞@72 71¾@72¾
Hudson River	32⅜@31@31¾
Pacific Mail	90@90@89¾
Panama	122¼@122
Reading	50¾@50½@50¾
Rock Island	57⅜@57@57¼
Toledo	25¼@24⅞@25
Galena	66¾@64¾@65
Michigan Central	51¾@50⅞@51¾
Michigan Guaranteed	34¾@34¼@34¾
Harlem Preferred	40@39

The sales of New-York Central were 8,000 shares in the course of the day; 2,500 in the morning at 72⅞@¾@½, and 1,000 (including Street sales) at 72⅝@72@71¾; followed by 4,500 in the afternoon at 72@72¼@⅞ ℔ cent. The fall in Hudson River, on some sales in the afternoon by the Broker of the steamboat party was 1½ ℔ cent., the price subsequently reaching to ¼@¾ ℔ cent. For Rock Island there was a continued Bull demand at 57@57½, while Galena was pressed on sale at 65@64¾ ℔ cent. At the decline of ¼ ℔ cent. on Panama the stock was taken, cash and seller's option, at 122. Pacific Mail advanced to 90, but fell off to 88½ against 89 at the close on Saturday.

The changes were not important in State Stocks, though Missouris were rather pressed on sale at 87¼@⅞, nearly $150,000, though the market took them freely. A parcel of $50,000 United States fives, of 1874, sold at 104⅛ ℔ cent. in the morning, and $90,000 more at the Second Board at same price. The Erie mortgages and plain bonds were all lower, while Hudsons advanced to 80 ℔ cent. for the third issue. Bank Shares were nearly all firm and in demand.

After the Second Board the general market left off with an improved demand for the speculative shares at the outside quotations.

The Sub-Treasury to-day received $95,213, including $89,000 for Customs, and disbursed $179,010; balance this afternoon, $6,811,013.

The London papers by the City of Washington advise that the Funds, after the latest quotation by the Arabia, on Saturday, April 9, fell to 94¼ ℔ cent. on rumors of immediate war from the Continent. On Monday morning there was a further fall to 94⅛, but immediately after a reaction to 94⅞@95. On Tuesday, 95@95½, closing 95½. And on Wednesday, firm at 95¼@95½. The Liverpool Grain and Provision markets improved on the prospect of Continental hostilities, and Cotton was 1-16d. @⅛d. lower. The former were not fully supported after the more pacific turn in the news.
